Symbol of Law in Oil Fields

The armed guardsman posted in front of the Mid-Continent refinery at Tulsa, Okla., symbolizes the strict martial law that has been imposed on this area since the outbreak of a strike by the Oil Field Workers' Union.

Troops 'Referee' As CIO Battle Grips Oil Capital

Tulsa Peaceful But Observers Predict Outcome Will Have Far-Reaching Effect on Oklahoma Labor.

TULSA, Okla—At this strategic "mid-continent" point, the C. I. O. is waging a relentless battle apparently to intrench itself not only in Oklahoma but the entire oil industry.

With the state militia posted as referee, the International Oil Field Workers' union has been picketing Mid-Continent Oil company properties ever since the before-Christmas strike dropped a pall over holiday activities.

Although C. I. O. leaders insist officially that the aim of the strike is primarily to obtain seniority rights and union dues checkoffs, observers predict that the outcome of the struggle will have a profound effect upon the future of labor in this area.

First In Oklahoma.

In this first major strike called by the C. I. O. in Oklahoma, union leaders are pulling every string and resorting to every force to win. Independent filling stations, selling Mid-Continent gas, face daily pickets, and even customers have been persuaded not to patronize the company.

The usual rivalries within labor ranks and among oil companies have been forgotten in this criti-

BLACKLIST JAPS

U. S. Bans Nippon From Buying Planes, Bombs.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States was disclosed today to have blacklisted Japan from further purchase of either airplanes or bombs in this country because of Japanese army bombings on civilian populations in China.

The ban, which went into effect last July 1, did not prevent Japan from buying $9,000,000 worth of American aircraft earlier in 1938.

All countries whose armed forces bomb civilians are included in the ban, but thus far Japan and Spain are the only countries found engaged in such practices. Spain is prevented from purchasing any munitions in this country by a special embargo act passed in 1937.

WEATHERMAN'S JUST LIKE THAT

Predicts Rain, Colder Tomorrow Will End 'Spring Preview.'

While the mercury was on its way to a new January mark today, the weatherman took the edge off the spring-like weather by predicting rain and colder Tuesday.

Despite partly overcast skies, the temperature reached 45 degrees at noon today to equal Saturday's high, and the forecast said it would go higher during the afternoon.

With yesterday more like April than January, motorists jammed the highways and birds twittered as if spring were close at hand. The high temperature yesterday was 50, and the mercury dipped to one degree below freezing this morning.

Europe Turns Eyes on Rome Parley

CHAMBERLAIN OFF TO CONFER WITH IL DUCE

Britain's 'Peace-Maker' Stops in Paris Tomorrow to Meet With Daladier.

DUCE CALLS COUNCIL

Summons Aides to Meet Feb. 4 to Consider Outcome of Historic Conference.

(By Associated Press)

Europe looked anxiously ahead today to a week crammed with turbulent possibilities.

Neville Chamberlain, peacemaker of Munich, will go to Rome to take the pulse of another dictatorship — the first British prime minister ever to make such a journey.

On his way he will confer tomorrow with Premier Daladier of France, Britain's Democratic partner whose relations with Italy are strained by Fascist clamor for French possessions.

Battle Rages On.

At the same time, two great battles are raging in Spain and a ferment of animosity on the border between Hungary and Czechoslovakia is disturbing both Prague and Budapest.

The outlook was anything but bright as Chamberlain conferred with his key ministers in London. Both dictatorships and democracies want peace, but each at its own price. The French-Italian issue may prove the stumbling block. On the eve of Chamberlain's departure, the French foreign ministry announced in Paris that Italy had protested against an alleged anti-Fascist demonstration during Daladier's visit last week in Algeria.

Italian Premier Mussolini has called a meeting of the Fascist grand council, Italy's highest ex-

Hull voiced his warning when he returned aboard the S. S. Santa Maria from the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. He was prepared to follow up President Roosevelt's latest warning to dictator nations with economic and diplomatic maneuvers.

Hull's statement was keyed to the spirit of unity developed among the nations of North and South America at the Lima conference.

These nations, he declared, do not desire isolation from the rest of the world but are prepared "to maintain and defend the peace of this hemisphere."

Bricker's inauguration marks the return of Republicans to nearly all state offices which have been held by Democrats since 1928.

FOUR HURT IN TRAFFIC HERE

County's Week-End Toll Light Despite Crowded Highways; 9 Meet Death in Ohio.

Richland county was off to a good start today in its drive to reduce its 1939 traffic accidents, with four persons injured, none seriously, in mishaps over the week-end, despite heavy travel induced by ideal weather.

Nine persons were killed in the state, however, which showed no decrease from last year's first week-end toll.

Richland county's injured, three of whom were women, were hurt in accidents in Mansfield.

An unidentified man was seriously injured this morning near Redhaw, Ashland county, when the car he was driving struck the end of a bridge and turned over. He was unconscious in Samaritan hospital, Ashland, where officers were attempting to identify him.

Three Mansfield women suffered minor injuries about 1:20 p. m. Sunday when automobiles in which they were riding collided at Lexington and Grover avenues.

Injured were Mrs. Catherine Hildebrand, Arch street, and Mrs. Harry Easterbrook, 34 Windwood avenue, who were riding with Elza Murray, 10 Henry street, and Sue Reed, Sherman place, a passenger MEXICO CITY—(INS)—The city of Orizaba in Vera Cruz state was under martial law today with a force of 1,000 Mexican soldiers maintaining deadlines between rival labor union factors to prevent recurrence of fighting which took five lives and left 10 persons wounded.

One faction opened a bombardment of the other with slugs of metal fired by cannon dating back to the American invasion of 1847.

Although official confirmation was lacking, the plane was identified as that polited by Lieut. Wallace E. Mau, 23, a student of aerial photography.

HOME LOOTED

$150 in Willard Church Funds Stolen, Treasurer Says.

WILLARD — Police here today were investigating the theft of $150 in Trinity Lutheran church funds from the home of Harold Wolfe, church treasurer, and an automobile owned by Charles Cope which was recovered several hours later in the old B. and O. railroad reservoir.

Wolfe said the money, most of which was in church contribution envelopes, was taken from his home early Monday by thieves who broke the glass in a back door and locked him upstairs while they scooped the funds out of a desk and fled.

Cope's car was stolen about 8 p. m. Saturday after his son, Carlos, had parked it near the United Brethren church.

The machine was recovered Sunday morning almost submerged in the B. and O. reservoir. Windows and headlights had been shattered.

Billy, a Boy-Scout, applied artificial respiration but John was already dead. His eyes red from weeping, Billy was paroled in the custody of his father pending action of the Middlesex county grand jury Friday.

SPUR HUNT FOR KNOX COUNTY JAIL BREAKER

Mansfield Highway Patrol in Search for 'Bad Man' Who Slugged Sheriff.

HALT ALL MOTORISTS

Police Search Cars on Belief Armed Desperado May Have Commandeered Auto.

State highway patrolmen of the Mansfield office were taking part today in the state wide search for John Manning, 36, Middletown "bad man," who made a jail break yesterday at Mt. Vernon after slugging Sheriff Clyde Biggs.

Mansfield motorists returning to the city last evening over state route 13 were stopped and their cars searched as road blockades were set up on all highways leading out of Mt. Vernon and Knox county.

50 Men In Search.

State patrolmen, county sheriffs and deputies from this section of the state, took part in the man hunt. Manning had a gun in his possession and it was believed that he might have commandeered a car after dark and forced the driver to take him from the scene of the jail break. More than 50 men took part in the search.

Manning and three companions rushed the sheriff yesterday afternoon as Biggs opened the door of the jail bull pen to admit five men who planned to conduct religious services.

Manning struck Biggs over the head with the butt of a revolver which is believed to have been smuggled to him. He ran out of a side door of the jail building, but the other halted when the sheriff, cut and bleeding about the head, drew his own gun and fired once.

Taken Back To Cells.

The three prisoners, James Fulton, 24, and Joe Gartin, 19, both of Columbus, and John Ross, 32, Sidney, were taken back to their jail cells by Briggs. All three are charged with auto thefts. Manning was held on a charge of forgery and was suspected in two loan company holdups in Mt. Vernon.

Biggs said the jail was searched a few days ago for hidden weapons when a jail break plot was suspected, and Manning's gun apparently had been smuggled in to him since then.

Mansfield motorists were stopped at blockades twice between Mt. Vernon and Fredericktown.

BEAUTICIAN HELD IN MURDER QUIZ

Divorcee's Body Found in Barber Shop Operated By Suspect.

LEBANON, N. H.—(AP)—A hairdresser who, Police Chief James F. O'Neil said, confessed he shot and killed Mrs. Freida Edson, 28, a divorcee, because she "laughed" at him, today was held in jail here.

County Solicitor Norris Cotton said that the beautician, Henry Gedeon Begin, 35, is now held on "suspicion."

Mrs. Edson's nude body, covered with barber towels, was found in the rear of Begin's beauty shop yesterday.

The police chief said that Begin told him that he had tried to end a friendship begun with the woman, mother of a seven-year-old son, last summer but that "she was very persistent."

County Fair To Be 1st In State Again

Annual Expo Extended to Five Days This Year, Will Open July 25.

Richland county's annual fair, set for the last week in July, will be the first county fair in Ohio again this year, and it will be held five days instead of four, the fair board decided Saturday afternoon at its annual meeting at the courthouse.

The fair will open July 25 and will continue through Saturday, July 29. There will be no admission charged Tuesday, the opening day, and horse racing will not start until Wednesday.

Directors scheduled the early fair after re-electing H. H. Wolf, Franklin township, president, and two of the three other officers. R. D. Hale, Mansfield, a former president of the board, was chosen secretary when C. C. Hout declined to accept the office again.

C. S. Henry of Weller township was re-elected vice president, and A. W. Strater, Mansfield, was chosen treasurer again.

1938 Loss Set at $150.

Hout, the retiring secretary, submitted a financial report, showing that last year's fair lost $150, which was the nearest any Richland county fair has come to breaking even in recent years.

The board, however, paid off $3,500 of its debt during the year and had $344 in its treasury at the start of this year as compared with $92 last year. In order to boost its balance the board had to borrow $500 late in 1938 to meet expenses. Its total debt now is approximately $4,000.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners, told the directors Saturday that the county will provide an additional $500 for financing the fair this year, making a total contribution for 1939 of about $4,500.

Fair receipts in 1938 from all sources amounted to $15,803 while expenses totaled about $15,950, the report showed. Admissions and grand stand tickets last year brought in $3,442.

At the suggestion of B. H. Huston of Shelby, the fair's racing superintendent, the board decided to open the 1939 fair on Tuesday and continue it through Saturday.

Although it was not definitely decided, it is probable that night

THRONG SEES NEW GOVERNOR TAKE OFFICE

G. O. P. Executive Points Out Need to Revitalize State, Local Governments.

FOR HONEST GOVERNMENT

Inaugural Address Given as Thousands Celebrate Return of Republican Regime.

COLUMBUS — Pointing to a need for revitalizing state and local governments, Gov. John W. Bricker dedicated Ohio's new Republican administration today to the defense of state sovereignty and establishment of economic and honest government.

Bricker phrased his inaugural address, voiced before thousands of Republicans massed in front of the west entrance to Ohio's historic state house, along national as well as state lines.

Davey Presents Commission.

Taking the gubernatorial commission from the colorful Democratic executive of the last four years, Martin L. Davey, and repeating the oath of office, Governor Bricker then declared that the Nov. 8 election was convincing evidence that "the two-party system of government is secure in this country."

Bricker referred to Communism and Fascism as being "founded upon the use of stark, unbridled power," and asserted that "no superman or dictator can point the way to the better life we seek."

"Even in this country we have seen a marked tendency toward centralization of political power, added Ohio's first Republican governor in eight years. "That outreach of power, that centralization of authority, influenced the American people in the recent campaign. The election indicated a trend—nation-wide in scope—away from undue centralization of power in Washington, accompanied as it has been by reckless public spending."

Will Oppose 'Abuses.'

Bricker, who has been mentioned among national party leaders as a Republican presidential possibility in 1940, said "we bow to the exercise of the paramount power of the federal government within its proper sphere."

"With all the ability we possess, we shall oppose the abuse of federal power, when it means the destruction of local self-government within its proper sphere," con-

Elephants, Mild Weather On Hand For Inauguration

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Bright, dry weather favored Ohio Republicans today for the inauguration of John W. Bricker as governor. The temperature was expected to reach 55 degrees in the afternoon.

In contrast, the inauguration of Myers Y. Cooper, the last Republican governor, was held under extremely unfavorable weather conditions. The temperature was belowe zero that day—Jan. 14, 1929.

Cincinnati Republicans sent three live elephants to Columbus to parade the streets as a symbol of the party's return to power in Ohio.

At least one retiring Democratic official had difficulty in entering the state house today. Lieutenant Governor Paul P. Yoder, who retired from office today, stood at the door for five minutes before he could convince a state highway patrolman that he was a public official. Yoder was not a candidate for re-election last year.

When Bricker entered the Deshler-Wallick hotel this morning to begin the inauguration day activities, he was bare-headed. The official party escorting him wore top hats to the man. It was recalled that Bricker had expressed his dislike for top hats.

SAFE ON SHORE

11 Passengers Taken To Manila After Ship Runs Aground.

MANILA — (AP) — Unperturbed and apparently none the worse for their experiences, 11 passengers of the grounded freighter Hoegh Silvercrest arrived in Manila today aboard a sistership, the Silveryew.

When the ship smashed hard aground on the southeast tip of Luzon island, Friday night, it felt like a slight earthquake, passengers said.

Mooney, Freed By Pardon, Plans Campaign For U. S. Labor Unity

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO — Fifty-six-year-old Tom Mooney, a free man in his home town after 22 years in prison, vowed today to spend the rest of his life in a campaign for labor unity and a drive to organize "every man, woman and child who works for a living."

"There is only one thing in this country that stands between the people and slavery," said Mooney. "That is a militant, aggressive labor movement."

Crowds that labor leaders estimated at more than 100,000 cheered Mooney when he reached San Francisco yesterday from Sacramento, where he was given an unconditional pardon Saturday by Gov. Culbert L. Olson, newly-seated liberal Democrat.

The governor, suffering from nervous exhaustion, was sent to a hospital after pardoning Mooney. His physicians said today he was recovering rapidly.

Mooney flanked by labor leaders of the AFL, the CIO and the railroad brotherhoods, spoke yesterday to massed thousands in the San Francisco civic plaza. He told in detail the story of his fight to freedom after being convicted with Warren K. Billings of participating in the bombing of a 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day parade in which 10 persons were killed and 40 wounded.

Mooney said he and Billings were framed because they were labor agitators.

A campaign to obtain a pardon for Billings was announced by Mooney, who visited Billings at Folsom prison Saturday.

Scores From County Help Jam Columbus For Inauguration

Scores of Richland county Republicans joined the parade to Columbus today to see John W. Bricker inaugurated as the first Republican governor in eight years.

The county's delegation, headed by Earl A. McFarland, state central committeeman from the 17th district, was estimated at more than 200 although definite figures were not available.

The spring-like weather caused a last-minute change to plans to charter buses for the trip.

Hundreds of cars and buses from Cleveland and other cities north of Mansfield traveled southward through the city during the morning en route to the capital.

Members of the Sixth Ward Welfare club from Cleveland set up a din as they came through the city about 10:30 a. m. in a bus over route 42. Passengers cheered and the bus sirens were turned on through the downtown section.

Since the new governor is a charter member of Franklin post, No. 1, American Legion, Columbus, state Legion officers, including R. B. Gardner, Mansfield, vice commander of the Ohio department, participated in the ceremonies

Eli Jensen, Springfield, department commander, presented Bricker with a diamond-studded pin in recognition of his work with the Legion.

Strange Laws Affect Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

At one of Mrs. Roosevelt's recent press conferences, one of the newspaper women, an ardent feminist, read a clipping from a Boston newspaper. Judge Franklin W. L. Miles, in a Roxbury Court, had ruled that day that it was perfectly proper for a husband to inflict all the damage he wanted to, on his wife's apparel. Accordingly, he adjudged James F. Higgis not guilty on a charge of wanton injury to personal property.

Higgins is 39 and his wife, Emily, is only 18. Not quite a case of May and December, but bordering on May and early autumn. Whether disparity of age was the cause of the row or not, the clipping didn't state. But Mrs. Higgins told the court that her husband had cut five dresses to ribbons, using a razor blade with amazing dexterity, and then he sliced two pairs of shoes and her fur coat. Mr. Higgins seems to have been an expensive luxury.

Judge Miles, after conferring with Chief Probation Officer Thomas F. Teehan, found that, under the old common law, Higgins was entitled to his wife's proyerty, "to do with as he saw fit." On the day, apparently, Mr. Higgins saw fit to do plenty to his wife's trousseau.

On the following day, the groom, still armed with his trusty razorblade, went to the house of his mother-in-law, on Motley Street, Roxbury, and allegedly inflicted more damage on his wife's coat. Only this time Mrs. Higgins had it on. A slight cut was said to have been inflicted on the young woman's shoulder.

Judge Miles found probable cause on a charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and held the groom for the Grand Jury. He placed bail at $500. It seems that this law was once in effect in Massachusetts, but has since been changed.

Asked what she thought about the case, Mrs. Roosevelt said that it would be well for women to work for better laws; that it might also be well for girls to be taught some useful way of earning a little money.

It has frequently been pointed out in this column that the laws governing marriage, property rights and control of children differ widely in so many of the states that it might be well for girls to inform themselves concerning these laws before marriage.

Make-Up Should Be Used Lightly

By MME. QUI VIVE

There's a lot of tall talk going on about changing makeup to suit the gown you wear. It is confusing and likely to throw the feminine mind into a panic. Every girl would have to consult her makeup chart as the Victorian belle consulted her dream book every morning.

That woman who has a practical mind and a far-seeing eye knows perfectly well that powder must be on good terms with her complexion, that certain shades of rouge will make her look brittle while others will make her look sweet, that she must select her lip smudge with extreme care if she is to live with it in peace and not have the family in her hair.

Those questions can be settled only by communion with the mirror, although it isn't always a bad idea to consult a beautician.

One starts with the powder. Slightly darker than the natural skin tone is the safe rule if defects of texture are to be hidden. The consistency of the powder must be considered, a light one for a thin, transparent skin, a heavier product for the cutaneous coat that is naturally thicker. As a rule blonds need light powders, brunets oiler ones.

Before getting rouge, find the right lipstick. Mouth coloring is so conspicuous that it is best to hit on the happy choice, then find a rouge that doesn't fight with it. Eyes should be the dominating feature, but they aren't when a girl has laid on her lip smear with a reckless, heavy hand.

The new fuschia shades are rich and appealing, and one can find nail polish of the same tones. The natural coloring of the lips is never vermilion or Chinese red, it always has a blue cast. The rouge may carry more red, still be on good terms with the veneer on the lips.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, January 10.

A VERY lively and interesting day is forecast from the ruling lunar directions. While there is decided promise of advancement, promotion or the preferment or friendly support of superiors, employers or others in influential positions, particularly in the launching of new projects, there also are menaces from treachery, subtlety or fraudulent machinations. It is strongly advised that extraordinary care be taken with contracts, documents and all writings.

Those whose birthday it is are in line for promotion, favors, the solid support of employers, superiods and those in power, who may contribute to the launching of meritorious new projects. But there are omens of trickery, fraud and undercover manipulations that are sinister and dangerous. Be specially cautious with all writings, documents and contracts, which should be referred to dependable attorneys.

A child born on this day may be very active, enterprising and have constructive ideas. It should enlist support from superiors or large interests. It may, however, lean to the "clever," smooth or easiest way, resorting to stratagem or expediency when it serves.

Small bath towels light in weight but firmly woven are easier for children to handle than larger, heavier towels. They are generally easier to launder, too.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

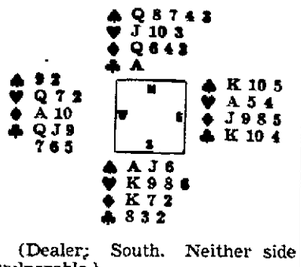
"The Authority on Authorities"

START BY UNBLOCKING

When you hold two touching honors of your partner's suit, your best lead against a No trump game is of course the top one.

But if you have a trebleton containing two non-touching honors, the small card is recommended in most of the out-of-date bridge books. Experience has proved convincingly to some the unsoundness of this, as it frequently results in blocking the suit.

Your best lead in such a case is the middle card of the trebleton, to unblock later on, holding your highest card to kill off a stopper and your lowest as an entry to your partner's hand.



(Dealer; South. Neither side vulnerable.)

After two passes, North opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade. East made a thinnish double, West responding with two clubs. East then bid 2-Diamonds, West 3-Clubs and East 3-No Trump, which South doubled.

As per "the book," South led his spade 6. It drew the 9, Q and K, and the declarer immediately led a club to North's A. A spade return was won by the J. South also return the A and then, straining to put his partner in the lead, offered the heart 6. When the dummy's Q won this, declarer ran five clubs, a diamond and another heart, making game.

Had South led his spade J, declarer's goose would have been cooked. If East held up, the suit would have been established before North's club A was gone. If East took the first trick, then South's ace would have accounted for the second spade round and the 6 would have furnished an exit to North's Q.

Of course, even after the original lead of the spade 6, South could have set the contract by returning diamonds instead of hearts, but the correct original lead would not have necessitated his figuring that out.

Gas and coal smoke are particularly hated by the Jerusalem cherry, and it will drop its leaves in short order if it comes in contact with either. It likes a cool window with plenty of sun, and a partially heated porch is an ideal location for it, 50 degrees being the most satisfactory temperature. Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Dick was so patently enjoying himself, masculine fashion, in outlining my procedure when we should leave our present quarters for the Lansfield that I repressed a little exclamation of impatience as his request that I get pencil and paper to jot down the details of his plan.

"In the first place," he said, "I'll send you that time table giving the trains from the town nearest Thorp's home to the city. Now I've already told you that you ought to get a taxi from here at about the time the train pulls into New York, so if Phil makes any inquiries at the Lansfield about the time of your arrival, the hours will click."

"Have you thought—?" I paused with affected diffidence, and Dicky gave a short little laugh.

"Don't be as funny as you can," he advised. "But you've something on your mind. Go on! Spill it!"

"It's only this," I said. "When Miss Whitlock shows that letter from me to Phil Veritzen, bearing the address of the town where we are supposed to be, mightn't he put detectives on that terminal to check whether we really do come back that way?"

Dickey struck the fist of one hand into the palm of the other.

"You've got something there," he said. "He probably will do that very thing, for, of course, he'll be suspicious of the whole set-up. Now, let's see — what's best to be done? Got any ideas?"

I had, definite ones, but I knew that in all probability he would think of the obvious move himself in another minute, so I pretended complete bafflement.

"Sorry, but I'm afraid my wits aren't working properly," I said. "I can't think of a single thing."

"Well! you can't hit on all six every time," my husband said comfortably. "But just give me a second or two. I have the glimmer of an idea."

He put his hands behind his head and gazed at the ceiling. When he turned them on me again, I knew that he had thought of a plan.

"How will this do?" he asked. "You be all packed up and ready to leave here at a minute's notice. When Miss Whitlock telephones you that letter you wrote her, and which Thorp will mail, has arrived and that she is going to show it to old Phil, suppose you and Mary get a taxi and beat it through the Holland tunnel to the town on that South Jersey line which is the second nearest New York. You may have quite a long ride, but it's worth the time and money to fool Philip Veritzen."

"I agree with you," I said heartily, "especially where Mary's welfare is at stake. But just what do you want us to do when we arrive at the Jersey station?"

Breakfast Menus Will Fill

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Breakfasts that resist the worst weather, luncheons that are light but satisfying, late suppers with a relish—they all mean "strike while the waffle iron is hot." The latest fashions in waffles range from that plain but dependable daddy of 'em all, to "nutty" and even sweet potato varieties. That's a jump that demands good "griddling" and proper attention to the ingredients.

Malted milk waffles call for one and one-half cups flour, two-thirds teaspoon salt, three teaspoons phosphate baking powder, two eggs, four tablespoons malted milk, one cup water and two tablespoons melted butter. Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder, add the beaten eggs and malted milk mixed with the water. Stir in the melted butter and beat until smooth. Bake as ordinary waffles.

Nut Waffles

Nut waffles, delightfully different, require two cups flour, four teaspoons phosphate baking powder, teaspoon salt, one and three-quarter cups milk, two eggs, two tablespoons melted butter and one cup chopped nuts. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add milk gradually, then yolks of eggs (well beaten) melted butter, nuts and egg whites (beaten stiff.) Then bake as ordinary waffle.

Chocolate waffles require one-half cup shortening, three-quarters cup sugar, two eggs, one teaspoon vanilla, one and one-quarter cups flour, one teaspoon phosphate baking powder, six tablespoons cocoa, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half cup milk. Cream shortening, add sugar slowly, add beaten eggs, flavoring and all dry ingredients, sifted together, alternately with the milk. Bake as ordinary waffles.

Bran Biscuits.

From waffles to biscuits isn't such a big jump. So that's our excuse for featuring a smell biscuit. Bran buttermilk biscuits are tasty and satisfying, so serve 'em soon. Three-quarters cup buttermilk, one-half cup all-bran, one and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, teaspoon salt, one-third cup shortening and one teaspoon baking powder will make a dozen biscuits. Soak all-bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse oatmeal. Add soaked all-bran; stir until dough follows fork around the bowl. Turn onto floured board; knead slightly a few seconds; roll or pat to one-half inch thickness and cut with floured cutter. Bake in lightly-greased pan in hot oven (450 F.) about 12 minutes.

THEATERS

THIS AND That: Myrna Loy is being considered for the role of Lady Esketh in Bromfield's "The Rain's Came," soon to be filmed. . . . The censors and the Hayes office played havoc with the Claudette Colbert version of "Zaza," cutting out great gobs of it. . . . If Nancy Kelly gets the role of Fern in "The Rain's Came," it will break the hearts of Phyllis Brooks and Wendy Barrie, both of whom want to play it. . . . Jack Oakie's Christmas gift to his mother in Hollywood was a long distance telephone call from St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Romance In Music.

If "Sweethearts" had nothing else to recommend it, there would still be Jeannette MacDonald in Technicolor—which is something to see and remember. However, this Nelson Eddy-MacDonald musical has many things to place it in the top bracket of movie entertainment. The Victor Herbert tunes have lost nothing with the years, and it has been elaborately staged. The original operetta is merely the show within the show, special scenes of it being used with the modern romantic comedy which revolves around two Broadway stars. It's at the Ohio for the week.

Little Tough Guys.

When "Dead End" was made it started a cycle of pictures revolving around bad boys. The Dead End Kids have appeared in a number of pictures since then and now Universal uses a similar group, Little Tough Guys, in "Newsboys' Home," which stars Jackie Cooper and Edmund Lowe. The kids are the newsboys who fight for their food and their ideals on the city streets. The film is at the Madison.

Delightfully Daffy.

The delightful insanity of the stage play, "You Can't Take It With You" is topped in the screen version, for the one sane member of the Sycamore family in the play behaves like a daffodil in the screen play when she falls in love with the boss' son. And the son, James Stewart, is something of a zanie. The love story of these two is a highlight of the picture, with Jean Arthur as the girl. Lionel Barrymore and Edward Arnold head an unusual cast. The picture is a current feature at the Park.

Alaskan Drama.

In a role which will please his fans because it is similar to that of "Souls At Sea," George Raft is one of three major players in "Spawn of North." He plays a fisherman in the Alaska frontier region who becomes a pirate fisherman when forced to it. Henry Fonda plays the life-long friend who is forced to fight him, and Dorothy Lamour is the owner of the village hotel. "Blockheads" with Laurel and Hardy is also shown at the Ritz.

Stirring Romance.

The stirring romance of a man who gets what he sets out for, a beautiful girl who marries for money and finds love, and a striking style show are features of "Mannequin" which give Spencer Tracy and Joan Crawford a story suited to both of them. Tracy is the self-made millionaire and Miss Crawford the girl who rises from the tenements to a Park avenue home. "Beg, Borrow or Steal," with Frank Morgan, Florence Rice and John Beal, make up the bill which opens at the Majestic Tuesday.

Italian Fare Has Tang

Here is a tasty and unusual recipe for Plenta Bolognese which was obtained from the proprietor of an Italian restaurant in New York. It is made up of cornmeal mush, Bolognese sauce and white sauce.

The cornmeal mush is made by combining 3 cups active boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 cup yellow cornmeal in double boiler. It is cooked for 45 minutes without stirring; removed from stove, poured into bread pan, cooled, and when firm, cut into pieces 1-inch square.

In preparing Bolognese sauce, 3 ounces raw beef flank, 3 ounces raw bacon, 1 onion, ½ clove garlic, 1 sprig parsley, and 1 carrot are put through food chopper, then put into hot saucepan containing tablespoon olive oil. When brown 2 tablespoons of flour are added. Simmer for half hour or until thick.

For white sauce 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt. All is stirred and boiled until thick.

Now for the "Polenta Bolognese." Butter baking dish. Line with square of cold mush, moisten with white sauce, sprinkle grated cheese, pour in ½ cup Bolognese sauce. Repeat, alternating until dish is full. Place cheese and dots of butter on top. Bake for 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Grapefruit Eggnog.

1 egg yolk; 1 cup grapefruit juice; 2 to 4 teaspoons honey; Few grains salt; 1 egg white; Nutmeg.

Beat egg yolk. Add grapefruit juice slowly, beating constantly. Add honey and salt. Beat egg white until stiff. Add grapefruit juice mixture slowly. Mix well. Pour into tall glass. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Serve at once, good and cold.

Change of Diet Welcome After Variety of Holiday Delicacies

It's good for the figure as well as the budget to start cutting down on food when the holidays are over. You should eat enough to keep up your vitality, but not too much.

A long walk every day, regardless of the weather, won't be a bad idea, and you ought to drink at least eight glasses of water a day.

A good starter is to drink the juice of a lemon squeezed into a man-sized glass of hot water as soon as you get up.

Fruit Combinations.

Your breakfast should be adequate, but carefully chosen. For instance, doubles in fruits will give zest to the day's first meal.

Try a combination of stewed prunes and pineapple juice, or half a grapefruit and a glass of orange juice, or fruit sauces, slightly sweetened and a generous glass of cranberry, apple or prune juice.

Between-Meals Snack.

Follow the fruits with eggs and toast (lightly buttered). Omit cereal with sugar and cream for a while. If you must have cream and sugar in your coffee, use them sparingly.

To satisfy that old demon, between-meals appetite, reach for a glass of buttermilk, sweet milk, unsweetened fruit juices or a fresh apple or pear. Between-meal snacks really are necessary during this cutting down period.

For lunch you can have a large bowl of soup. If it's a thick cream soup, forgo crackers but you can have a few of them or some toast if the soup is the clear or vegetable. A big salad is a must. Have it fruit or vegetable with French dressing. Tuna can stand a small amount of boiled salad dressing. For the beverage, select buttermilk, milk or tea with lemon.

For dinner, you really need not feel cramped. You can eat almost anything, except, of course, rich heavy desserts. But do not indulge in seconds.

Lean meats, fish and fowl are preferred to the fat meats. Vegetables lightly seasoned are better than those hidden under rich sauces. You can even have a little jam on your bread or gravy on your potatoes. Better choose between bread or potatoes. One or the other is enough.

Another Salad.

Since salads contain valuable toning up ingredients and are very filling add one also to the dinner menu. A large green salad is best. Or sliced tomatoes and cucumbers are refreshing.

Dessert can be fresh or canned fruits, gelatin made from fruit juices, custards or a tiny sliver of cake or pie. But never any rich sauces or whipped cream.

Then if that empty feeling turns up before bedtime, remember to cater to it with a glass of fruit juice or some fresh fruit.

After three days your will power will be so strong that it can withstand almost any culinary temptation. You will feel better and the loss of pounds will quicken your step and brighten your eye.

The clean marble, cover it with a paste made by mixing two tablespoons of soda, one tablespoon each of salt and powdered pumice and some cold water. When the spread paste has dried, rub it off with a cloth and wash the marble well with soap and water. Repeat if stains are hard to remove.

Congress Group Bent on Slashing WPA Fund Request

CALL HOPKINS FOR QUIZ ON RELIEF NEEDS

New York Mayor Also Called to Testify; Dies Hurls 'Pussyfooting' Charge.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — In the face of an economy drive, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York asked a house appropriations sub-committee to boost President Roosevelt's emergency relief request from $875,000,000 to $915,000,000.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The twin question of future WPA spending and past relief administration aroused fresh debate today in congressional committees.

In the house, an appropriations subcommittee appeared bent on trimming down President's Roosevelt's estimate that an additional $875,000,000 would be necessary to operate the WPA until June 30.

The subcommittee called Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington, David Lasser of the Workers' Alliance, and Ralph Hetzel of the CIO. The latter organization seek a $1,000,000,000 appropriation..

Question Hopkins Today.

Across the capitol, the senate commerce committee took up Harry Hopkins' nomination for secretary of commerce.

Committee members indicated they would question Hopkins about how relief was handled when he was the WPA administrator.

Relief problems also were under consideration by the senate unemployment committee, which is trying to develop some state-by-state formula for distribution of funds. The arrangement would be designed to strip the WPA administration of most discretionary powers.

Some committee members said ultimately it might be necessary to set up a form of direct dole instead of work relief. This, they added, would be bulwarked by a job-creating public works program.

Besides relief, several other controversies were developing in both house and senate. Chairman Dies, (D.-Tex.) of the house committee on un-American activities called on the administration to 'quit pussyfooting" and make known its attitude toward continuing the inquiry for two years with a $150,000 appropriation.

Oppose Fund Plea.

Some administration spokesmen have opposed granting the money, but have conceded that Dies has considerable support. There were indications that an effort might be made to reduce the requested appropriation and limit the committee to an additional four months.

In the senate, a judiciary subcommittee will hear testimony tomorrow on the qualifications of Felix Frankfurter to be a supreme court justice.

Another senate judiciary group considered calling hearings sometime this week on the nomination of Frank Murphy, former Michigan governor, to be attorney general.

Both house and senate marked time on several major legislative issues pending disposition of the relief question. Only routine sessions were on today's calendar.

FILE SUITS IN DRUG SWINDLE

McKesson Stockholders Claim Directors to Blame for Company's Losses.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Five stockholders of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., sought return of their investments today in a superior court suit charging directors of the concern directly responsible for their losses.

Defendants in the action, which sought $25,000 damages, were all of the directors, wives of the Musica brothers, and the New York accounting firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., which certified the company's books.

The plaintiffs were Alec Cohen, Peter Margoles, Concetta Amato and Anna A. Kaufman, all of this city, and Police Lieutenant Frank Virelli, Bridgeport.

The suit asked a court order allowing all other common stock holders to intervene as plaintiffs.

Wives of three of the Musica brothers, who were officers of the concern, also were named as co-defendants. It was alleged property was transferred to them by their husbands for the purpose of concealing assests of the company from creditors and stockholders.

JACK BENNY FLIES TO N. Y. TO TESTIFY IN SMUGGLING CASE

(By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — Still declaring he "doesn't know what it's all about," Jack Benny, radio and movie comedian, today was flying to New York to appear before the federal grand jury in the Chaperau smuggling case.

After completing the second of his Sunday broadcasts, in which he seemed to be in fine fettle, the comedian dashed to an airport and left for the east at 10:30 p. m. (PST) by American air lines. He is traveling under the name of "Clarence Barrett" and is accompanied by his manager, Myrt Blume, known for the duration of the flight as "William Stevenson."

Neither would discuss the case, except for Benny's denial of knowing anything about it, while the motors of the plane received a final "gunning" before the take-off.

It was understood, however, that the comic was to appear before the federal grand jurors tomorrow to go into details of his friendship and association with Albert N. Chaperau, who claims immunity in bringing articles to this country on the grounds he was an attache of the Nicaraguan consul general. The government is contesting the validity of his Nicaraguan commission.

Benny's singing wife, Mary Livingston, was reported to have received articles valued at $1,200 through Chaperau.

Another radio comedian, George Burns, has pleaded guilty in New York in connection with the Chaperau case.

INVESTIGATORS SOLVE MYSTERY AT MARYSVILLE

Reveal Youth Took Own Life Because Physical Deformity Made Marriage 'Impossible.

(By Associated Press)

MARYSVILLE—The suicide of Clark S. Hayes, 28, in a waterfilled quarry on his wedding eve because a physical deformity made marriage "unthought of," provided the chief topic of conversation among acquaintances in this vicinity today.

Prosecutor William S. Porter announced the suicide verdict yesterday after funeral services for the grocery clerk, whose weighted body was recovered by a diver Thursday.

Previously termed a "plain case of murder," the death of Hayes at first baffled authorities. He disappeared Tuesday night, the eve of his contemplated marriage to Miss Oletha Morrow, 26, his girlhood sweetheart, who also worked in the store at nearby Summersville.

All Probers Agree.

"He was as much man as woman and he realized marriage would be unthought of," Porter said in announcing the verdict, concurred in by all investigators on the case.

"He had postponed marriage several times. When he saw there was no way of postponing marriage this time and that to reveal the fact of his physical condition was out of the question, he weighted himself down with rocks and a milk can in hope that his body would be so decomposed when it was found that his physical condition would not be known."

Porter said he believed that only Hayes' mother knew of his condition and that his death had been planned to appear as though he had been the victim of an attempted robbery.

The prosecutor said the suicide finding was agreed upon by Coroner J. M. Foster, Sheriff Homer Roosa, Detective Sgt. C. C. Cole of the Columbus police department, and state highway patrolmen.

Hayes was buried at York Center, near the home of his fiancee, as she looked on weeping. Relatives and friends prevented newsmen from photographing her.

Several hundred persons gathered about the Union county jail to hear Porter's announcement of the findings in the death.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Our Colored Minority Isn't Much Better Off Than Jews In Germany

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—We have in the United States a minority of native Americans who are victims of discrimination, as follows:

They live in segregated districts, and when one of their families buys a home in a white neighborhood, the white neighbors are indignant and real estate values suffer.

They are barred by force of custom, according to locality, from theaters and restaurants, or, if not barred from theaters, are segregated from the whites, or, if not segregated, are made to feel unwelcome and uncomfortable.

In certain parts of the country they are segregated in public conveyances and are forbidden to be abroad in certain areas after sundown.

In certain sections they are barred from public schools, to the support of which they contribute their taxes according to their means, on equality with the whites.

It is true that the national government disapproves all or most of this discrimination and has adopted laws intended to mitigate it in time, and that is the great, moral difference between the conduct of the American government toward the colored here and the conduct of the Nazis toward the Jews in Germany. But, in practical effect, this large, native American minority is no better off than the minority in Germany.

The American minority is barred from many occupations regardless of the qualifications of individuals and members of the white majority, including even descendants of those soldiers who fought to liberate them, exclude them out of respect for a strange verboten which they cannot explain. Yet they are not hated, they are just excluded.

Nevertheless, if any foreign nation were to make diplomatic representations in Washington, looking to a "rescue" of this minority, the United States would deem that an impudent interference and rebuke the meddler severely.

In fact, when the Communists, acting under remote control of Moscow, go among them and steam them up, white Americans are indignant at the Communists and want to do something to them for creating discontent and trying to arouse disorder in our peaceful midst.

The Germans, of course, have been more brutal about their minority, for their course has inflicted a sudden denial of liberties to which that minority was accustomed and to the theft of property and violent treatment of the whole group. Our minority is so lately out of bondage that a few individuals still live who were born slaves, and the trend has been toward greater freedom and opportunity, with only one sharp setback a long time ago.

The Germans also have invented a ransom scheme by which other nations would be required to pay for the chivalrous privilege of relieving them of an unwanted, and by now hated, minority which is a burden and problem to them. The Americans have not attempted to impose on the humane instincts of other peoples by beating, robbing and terrorizing their minority, to the end that those other nations would be moved to offer them asylum.

The Americans have somewhere in the back of their minds an unformed intention some day to make conditions more pleasant for their minority and enlarge their opportunities, but progress toward that goal is as slow as the workings of evolution. The Nazis, on the contrary, have no intention ever to improve the condition of their minority.

There is a distinction between the official and popular attitudes of the American and Nazi minorities toward their respective minorities, from which the American majority may derive a little, but only a little, moral satisfaction or face. We are not purposely, suddenly cruel, and we hope to do better.

But in the real conditions of life the American minority is no better off than the minority in Germany, and it were good for this country's soul to inspect the situation at home, at least as often as we gaze with horror at the situation in Nazi Germany. This subject is so embarrassing that it is seldom discussed in the United States.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Harry Langdon is the luckiest man in Hollywood—and the most grateful.

His career as a top-flight comedian has been dead and done for 10 years or more. Suddenly the fates have tossed into his lap a chance to bring it back to life. It's like working on borrowed time.

Langdon, famed on the silent screen as a round-faced, wistful-eyed, dead-pan comic star, today is a middle-aged man, a little heavier about the jowls and paunch, a lot wiser—and happier too, he says—than in the days of his reckless, free-spending stardom.

"I must have given away thousands, and spent thousands more," he says. "I never counted much on money, thought much of it—until I was flat."

From vaudeville headliner to movie comedian was an easy, lucrative jump for Langdon in the silent days. Three years at Mack Sennett's were so profitable that he formed his own company to make features—and that was his downfall.

"I had to turn out a feature in 10 weeks, where Chaplin and Harold Lloyd were spending up to two years on each of theirs," he recalls. "It couldn't be done—the public quickly tired of the character, and there I was, in '29—out. I'm not the type who could make good as his own producer. The responsibility got me down. I finally said, 'Oh, nuts!' That's the way I always was. In vaudeville I couldn't rest till I got to the top, and then I didn't care about it."

After his "collapse" in 1929, Langdon went back to short comedies, tried writing, appeared briefly in a feature with Al Jolson, but never regained his old prominence. He had a job with Stan Laurel, writing "gags" for the Laurel and Hardy pictures, when Stan split with his boss, Hal Roach.

Langdon, appearing anonymously, had been greeted warmly by previewers of another Roach comedy, "There Goes My Heart," and he was the logical choice for a Hardy partner.

"Stan got me my job here," says Harry, "and he understands this thing now. He knows that if I hadn't taken it, someone else would have—and he's glad I got the break. Great fellow, Stan."

The picture is "It's Spring Again," and Langdon is away from his old comedy character—and away from the Laurel and Hardy routines too. The battered hat and oversized shoes he used in vaudeville and earlier pictures are stowed away in a closet.

"If I click in this," he says, "I hope I can just ride along. I never want another build-up. They talk about coming back to the top—I'm tired of the top. I'm happy. My wife (his third) and I get along fine, we have a fine 4-year-old boy, and — well, everything's right. When I'd given up all hope of a comeback, can you wonder that I'm grateful?"

Advice to the young actor? "Save your money!"

CHANGES IN GRID PASSING RULES TO HELP OFFENSE, COACHES BELIEVE.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

FORWARD passing will play a more important part in football next fall than ever, if that is possible, according to the coaches.

Already the most lethal and popular attacking weapon in the game, the aerial route has received a shot in the arm from rule changes by the national rules committee.

As Owen Middlemiss, Associated Press sports writer says, this is like putting a rock in Joe Louis' fists.

At its recent meeting, the committee eased the penalty for hitting an ineligible receiver with a forward pass. Where the attacking team formerly lost the ball at the spot of the preceding down, it now merely a 15-yard penalty and loses the down.

Another alteration prevents ineligible receivers from advancing beyond the line of scrimmage until a pass is thrown. On the face of it, this will cut forward passing effectiveness to some extent, for the receiver will have to depend on the other eligible receivers for blocking unless there's a Jesse Owens in the line. It will also work a hardship on the officials.

But the two changes taken together actually act for the offense, coaches believe. The short shovel passes and longer overhead heaves behind the line of scrimmage which can change the whole focus of a play will be used more freely. In the past, fear of hitting an ineligible receiver held the coaches back.

Downfield pass receiver won't suffer much from the second change, either. Good passing depends on able passers and receivers, not on blocking after the pass is caught. Linemen will protect the passer, so say the mentors.

If any general trend can be drawn from the rules it is one of keeping step with the professional game. The college football lords realize they must present a faster, more wide-open game if they are to hold the attention of the new generation of football-wise fans.

Sports Writers Make Errors, Too.

FLEDGLING office boys often have their baptisms of fire, but none suffered worse than a lad who was placed recently at a telephone at a newspaper plant, given a sheaf of papers and told to supply to callers the results of various sporting contests that had taken place during the day.

Straight from the end of a bar came the voice of a bemused soul who was in a big argument with another tippler and asked, thickly:

"Pleazsh, tell me who won the Battlin' Nelson-Joe Ganzsh prizesh-fight at Goldfield, Nev?"

"What's that?" from the office boy, dazedly.

"I shold I wan' to know who won the prizesh-fight between Battlin' Nelson an' Joe Ganzsh at Goldfield, Nev."

There was a rapid shuffling of papers and the boy answered, crisply: "The decision isn't in yet."

Of course, the fight was fought in 1906, but the questioners, apparently didn't realize the difference. The man on the phone said, "Okay!" and was perfectly satisfied.

Sports Tackle Plant

Yuncker Team Can Cinch Crown With Victory Over Westinghouse Five.

OPENING round championship tussles in the City Class A league loop will be the goal of the undefeated Yuncker Sports aggregation when the circuit presents its weekly program on the Mansfield high court tonight.

The Sportsmen, defending champions, meet the Westinghouse Electric combine in the feature attraction at 8:30, and a victory for the Yuncker outfit will give it the crown.

Elks Face Hi-Speeds.

Another interesting tussle is expected in the opening game in which the once-beaten Elks Lodge quintet tackles Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds.

The Electrics' victory hopes are not bright, but they will be battling to stop the Sports and grab a share of the title. A Westinghouse triumph enables it to tie with the defending titlists for the crown.

If the Sports, who are also defending a 11-game winning streak, win tonight, they automatically gain a place in the playoffs at the end of the season for the City league title. The league plays three rounds with the winners of the rounds meeting in the playoffs.

The Westies' hopes of victory over the favored Sports hinges on their ability to halt trio of sharpshooters, namely John Reese, Lexington high coach, Al Stickler, and LaVerne Gray, late of Coshocton high.

Gray, 1936-37 individual scoring champion of the Central Ohio league, who is a freshman at Ashland college, played in the opening game for the Sports, but failed to make a point. And Manager Jimmy Breres' expects the lad to hit his stride tonight.

Yuncker's machine must concentrate on Bob Shade and Harry Ross if they hope to come out on top. Shade, a great under-the-basket shot, in his last game tipped in 21 points.

The Hi-Speeds will endeavor to have their entire starting lineup available as they try for the initial City league win. In the two games played this season, Herrick has been unable to assemble his full strength.

Hold Height Advantage.

Herrick has a pair of lanky forwards and will have an advantage in height. They are Delnore Goldsmith and George Nana, Galion amateur stars. The Elks will depend on Tom Farrell to fight it out with these two for the rebounds.

The Elks will enter the fray as favorites, but anything can happen when two such well-matched outfits tangle.

Tonight's card gets underway at 7:30 o'clock.

Sports Hand Marion Club Second Defeat

THE undefeated Yuncker Sports quintet registered its third consecutive triumph of the season Sunday by downing the Marion Snappy Service five, 39 to 31, at the Marion armory.

Strengthened by the addition of Tom Farrell and Jack Miner to the lineup, the Sports displayed a spectacular passing attack that bewildered their rivals.

It was the second defeat in 15 starts for the Marion basketeers and they never seriously threatened to overtake the Mansfield aggregation.

Manager Jimmy Breres' high-scoring combine clicked with precision to set up easy under-the-basket shots which gave it an early advantage that was held all the way.

Paced by LaVerne Gray, who copped individual honors with 13 points, the Sports went to work in the early minutes to pile up a commanding lead.

The Sports went ahead, 12 to 5, in the opening stanza, and although they were outscored by one point in the second quarter, held a 17 to 11 advantage at halftime. Breres' machine spurted in the third to take a 29 to 19 lead going into the final period.

Farrell followed Gray in the scoring column with 10 points, while Roy Green led the losers with 10.

The game was played as the feature attraction on a three-game program presented at the armory yesterday afternoon.

Jim Demaret Sets Blistering Pace

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., seemed a certain winner today as he strutted down the rolling fairways of Griffith park on the final round of the $5,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament five strokes ahead of a select field.

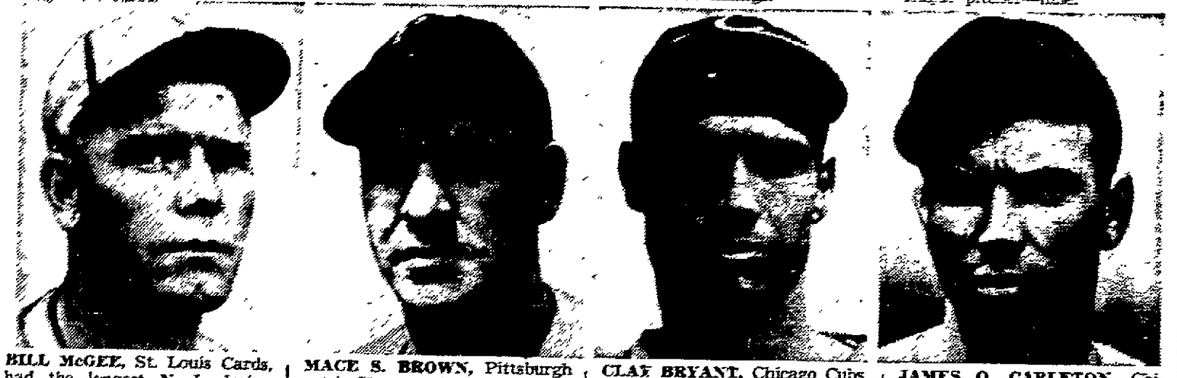
The round-faced young Texan, who never before has been within grasp of victory in a major medal tournament, began his last 18 holes on the treacherous Wilson course with an aggregate score of 205.

BOB FELLER, Cleveland, set an American league record with 208 base-on-balls. (But he also led in strikeouts with 240.)

AL WILLIAMS, Philadelphia Athletics' righthander, pitched in 30 games. Yet he ended with "zero" in the "won" column.

BUCK NEWSOM, St. Louis Browns, set an A. L. record by having 186 earned runs against him in 330 innings.

EARL WHITEHILL, veteran Cleveland lefthander, hit the most batsmen of any American league pitcher—nine.



BILL McGEE, St. Louis Cards, had the longest N. L. losing streak: nine games. He got only one shutout in 25 starts.

MACE S. BROWN, Pittsburgh got in 51 games but did not hurl a single complete contest. This beat his own record of 50.

CLAY BRYANT, Chicago Cubs, allowed the most sacrifice hits in the National league, 21; and the most bases-on-balls, 125.

JAMES O. CARLETON, Chicago Cubs, cut loose with the most wild pitches in the National —12.

Bob Moser set the Shiloh scoring pace with 15 points, compiled from six field goals and three free throws. Tolles led Union with nine points.

Favor Illini Over Indiana

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Underdogs get their chance tonight to crack down on the upper-crust in the second lap of the Big Ten basketball race.

All teams will resume action except Ohio State and defending champion Purdue, both of whom were victorious in the opening set of games. Saturday, when Indiana, one of the favorites, was defeated.

Tonight's schedule finds Indiana invading Illinois, Iowa stopping off at Minnesota, Northwestern playing host to Michigan and Chicago traveling to Wisconsin. The Illini, Minnesota and Wisconsin, along with Purdue and Ohio, all won their opening conference games.

Indiana, rated with Minnesota as the strongest contenders in the 1939 campaign, finds itself in the paradoxical position of underdog in the game against Illinois. This is explained by Saturday's results. The Hoosiers, largely a sophomore outfit, ran up against a tricky Ohio State team and were mowed down 45-38 before thye had a chance to get their bearings. Illinois on the other hand, exceeded expectations in whipping a good Michigan team, 30-20.

THERE'S SOME ARGUMENT

It is claimed that it wasn't Hurry-Up Yost but old man Alonzo Stagg who first had his gridders spiral their passes and kicks.

Tygers Tackle Ashland Quint

Mansfield Cagers Balance Record With 39 to 23 Victory Over Cleveland West on Home Court.

THEIR record balanced by a 39 to 23 victory over Cleveland West, the Mansfield high school hoopsters today worked on the practice court in preparation for their meeting with Ashland on the home hardwood Tuesday night.

The Tygers gave one of their greatest performances of the season Saturday night before a well-filled gymnasium as they avenged their first defeat of the current campaign.

The visiting team was never in the ball game after the opening minutes, and Ashland is in for some trouble Tuesday if the Tygers resume the pace they set on their own court Saturday night.

A's Beaten Once.

Ashland comes to the Mansfield floor sporting one of the best records of any Tyger foe. The Ashland cagers won five straight ball games before bowing to Sandusky, 30 to 21, Saturday.

The Mansfield-Ashland game is one of three tilts on schedule Tuesday night. Madison, idle last week, returns to action against Union in a county league game on the Rams' court and Crestline goes to Willard. Madison is the present county league leader.

Tommy Scott, Jake Lyons and Jack Dugger stood out for the Tygers as they gained revenge for the 38 to 37 overtime defeat suffered in Cleveland several weeks ago.

Scott and Lyons led the scoring with 10 points apiece, while Dugger's work around the basket, particularly on the defense, was outstanding.

Packing one of the best offenses witnessed on the Mansfield planks this season, the West courtiers did not admit defeat until the final period when the Tygers literally rained the hoop with field goals.

The Tygers held a seven-point 26-to-19 lead going into the fourth period. A spurt by West could have done a lot of damage in the final quarter, but the Tygers took care of the situation very well.

Instead of going on the defense to protect their lead, the Tygers played offensive ball until the last minute. They tallied 13 points in this quarter to extend their lead to 16 points. Only two baskets were permitted West in the fourth frame.

The visitors jumped into a 3 to 0 lead in the opening minutes of the fray. A free throw by Scott and a rebound basket by Dugger knotted the count. Then Dugger parted the strings with a shot from the side of the court to give Mansfield a lead that was never threatened.

Mansfield held a 10 to 4 advantage going into the second period and extended its lead to 10 points at one time in the quarter. The half ended with the Tygers on top by a 17 to 12 margin.

Pete Kosch, who scored 16 points against the Tygers in Cleveland, was held to two baskets and a free throw Saturday. He shared the Cleveland scoring honors with Sardelle and Patton.

Win Close One.

The Mansfield high reserves were forced to the limit to pull through to a 15 to 14 victory over Simpson junior high cagers in the preliminary game. Simpson held a 5 to 3 lead at the end of the first period, but the reserves tied the count at 9-all at the intermission. The junior Tygers jumped into a 13 to 11 lead in the third period, and protected this advantage in the final quarter.

Martin Henke led the reserves with seven points. Shiplet was high for the Bulldogs with the same number of points.

In abbreviated games played between the halves of the varsity and preliminary tilts, Bushnell whipped West Fifth, 9 to 6, and Hedges edged Bowman, 2 to 1.

Winner of Match To Meet Champ

A rematch between the Great Mephisto, former light-heavyweight champion of the world, and Whitey Wahlberg, who hails from Duluth, Minn., will headline next Friday's wrestling show at the Armory, Promoter Tim Nolan of the Quality Athletic club announced today.

Nolan has offered the winner the spot against Champion Billy Weidner in a title match to be staged at the Armory in two weeks.

Mephisto and Wahlberg, who are rated among the 10 leading contenders in the division, wrestled here several weeks ago, with Mephisto the winner. Wahlberg was so badly shaken by the fall that it was necessary to carry him from the ring.

NOT DRINKERS

5 Boys Steal Beer, Dump It and Sell Bottles.

EAST MOLINE, Ill.—(INS)—Police marveled at the misdirected business acumen of five boys today. The boys, from 13 to 15 years of age, were arrested in connection with the theft of 100 large size bottles of beer from a Lig brewery here. The boys did not drink the beer, police said, but emptied it and tried to return the bottles to the brewery for the 10 cent refund the brewery offered for every large bottle.

Mooney's Wife and Sister Greet Him

Tom Mooney's wife and sister had waited 22 years for the moment shown here—when he left prison for the last time. No wonder they both shed tears. Mrs. Mooney is shown right and his sister, Anna, is at left. The picture was taken outside the walls of San Quentin, just before Mooney went to Sacramento to receive his pardon from Governor Culbert L. Olsen, Saturday.

MAGICIAN 63 YEARS, HE STILL TEACHES BIG MEN LITTLE TRICKS

Now you see it . . . Now you don't . . .

Which doesn't sound like anything on which to build a career. But just those seven simple words have provided Sala Ansbach with a profession for 63 years. A modestly profitable profession, we might add.

Ansbach, who looks quite a bit like Lloyd George, and who is a Mansfield visitor for a week or perhaps two, has a most unusual profession.

He teaches big men little tricks; teaches the Tired Business Man who has never learned to play, how to become the life of the party in a few easy lessons. He teaches magic as a social diversion.

In his leather case are timeworn letters from many of the nation's biggest men whom he has taught tricks of magic, and among his clients were such men as the Earl of Derby, Charles M. Schwab, Coleman duPont, the late George Pullman and heads of the banking house of Morgan.

"Men like Pullman" he will tell you, "who had been so busy building up a fortune that they had not learned to play, have been the easiest to approach. The bigger a man is, the easier he is to reach. Pullman didn't even have a secretary at his home. You just rang the bell and a doorman took your card to the multimillionaire.

"The bigger they are the more interested they are in my little tricks. Perhaps it's because practicing magic and slight of hand provides complete relaxation; or perhaps it's because skill in magic provides a social grace which permits one to hold the center of the stage and the interest of everyone present."

And with this guarantee of "never a dull moment", Mr. Ansbach has traveled over the world during the past 63 years, entertaining at clubs and private parties, teaching important men how to make the ace of spades become the seven of diamonds right before your eyes; how to make two coins out of one.

Ansbach is really good. None of this up-your-sleeve stuff, none of the obvious mechanics of magic—things just disappear and change before your eyes. Even so astute a showman as the late Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, political boss for many years, learned some new tricks from Ansbach.

And the late Alvin W. Krech, head of the Equitable Trust company of New York City, had been interested in Ansbach's magic from the time he was a $12-a-week clerk until his death when he left an estate of $11,000,000. The trick he liked best was that of making two coins out of one.

Senator Capper of Kansas, head of the Capper Publishing company, engaged Ansbach to come out to a party and show his editors and reporters tricks of magic.

"Every reporter", he said, "needs to be a magician."

Ansbach will spend a few days in Mansfield. And just in case the confirmed bridge players would like to question him more closely about this changing the spots on cards—he may be reached at the Court hotel.

RATE CONTINUES

Social Security Levy Stays at 1 Per Cent Until 1940.

Employes contributions of one per cent of their wages on jobs that are covered by the old age insurance plan will continue for another year before they are increased, R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield field office of the Social Security board, said today.

"The rate this year is the same as it was in 1937 and 1938," Mish explained. "After Dec. 31, 1939, employes will contribute 1½ per cent of their wages until Dec. 31, 1943, when the rate will be increased to two per cent. The two per cent rate will apply for three years and then will be raised to 2½ per cent for another three years before it goes to three per cent."

Employers are taxed a like amount for each worker under Social Security.

Mish said that the taxes for the final quarter of 1938 are payable not later than Jan. 31 at the office of the U. S. collector of internal revenue in Cleveland.

3 Months After Munich—

ENGLISH HOPE THERE'LL BE NO MORE GIVING IN

Memories of Munich Still in Mind With Chamberlain's Trip to Rome Near.

BACKGROUND

Little more than three months have passed since Munich, and now Prime Minister Chamberlain is planning another trip—this time to Rome. In those months Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy have swelled with power and pride. What of the great democracies — England and France? Here William McGaffin tells how England has fared and what she is thinking. Tomorrow he will tell of France in a dispatch written from Paris.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
(AP Feature Service Writer)

LONDON—"I'm ashamed to be British."

You heard that frequently after the Munich deal.

And Leon Blum, the French political leader, expressed not only his own feelings but those of the average Englishman when he said, "I feel myself divided between cowardly relief and my sense of shame."

But at the same time there was resignation and acquiescence among the English.

"Distasteful as Munich was, after all, what else was there to do? Britain was in no position to take on Germany. After all, the prime minister did give us peace of a sort—though it cost a sickening price."

Once a Hero—But Not Now.

Neville Chamberlain was a hero.

But Neville Chamberlain is no hero as he sets out for Rome to do some more "appeasing," at conferences starting Jan. 11th.

His whole policy of appeasement, as opposed to the sterner attitude of ex-foreign minister Anthony Eden who once went to Rome himself with unhappy results, will be at stake. At present Italy is making faces at France. No one expects immediate war but some think the campaign is one to create a "second Godesburg" requiring the attention of Britain's "honest broker" when he arrives.

Critics are afraid also that in the Spanish war discussions, Chamberlain will "sell out" Loyalist Spain as he did Czechoslovakia.

There is a growing feeling against "giving in" to the dictators, a growing distrust that it will bring peace, or be interpreted as anything but a sign of weakness.

Indications of Possible Revolt.

The new reaction was expressed by the news placard of a popular two-penny weekly: "To Hell with Hitler!"

Even a section of Chamberlain's own Conservative party is quarreling with his policy. He is keeping them in line with a heavy hand. Luckily for the prime minister, the opposition is disorganized.

There are many, however, who feel that Chamberlain will be unable to quell a political revolt if he continues to "cheapen" British prestige.

"Things, indeed, have reached a sorry state," the average Englishman indignantly explodes, "when countries which wouldn't have dared after the war are crowding each other for position to twist the British lion's tail."

Much Twisting, Little Roaring.

The principal countries he has in mind, of course, are Japan, Italy, and Germany.

Japan was the first to twist the tail when she invaded Manchuria in 1931 on a campaign which by now has gravely undermined British prestige and markets throughout the Far East.

Japan's aggression also started the British-dominated League of Nations on the path to oblivion—and encouraged Italy to give the tail a spin by grabbing off Ethiopia.

Next, Italy and Germany teamed up in Spain. British merchantmen were bombed and torpedoed. Britain replied with the "non-intervention" committee and tried to believe that British and French colonial "lifelines" would not be critically endangered by a Fascist victory.

Finally, in 1938, Germany demonstrated she had become a "grown-up" power again by knocking off Austria and breaking up Czechoslovakia.

Additional Difficulties.

Britain has had other headaches.

Britain is laboring under an adverse trade balance, and there has been a considerable depreciation of the pound sterling.

Rearmament to make Britain, as Chamberlain says, "strong enough so that her diplomacy will be generally respected" has increased the income tax to 27½ per cent, and the public debt to £8,144,128,417 (roughly $40,750,000,000).

And there have been assertions that the British Empire may be breaking up.

But Chamberlain says now that rearmament is far enough advanced to enable Britain to fulfill her obligations to empire and allies.

When England Would Fight.

Chamberlain's answer is, he would infinitely prefer not to, but that he would fight if necessary:

1. To defend England and the empire and imperial communications.

2. To defend France and Belgium against unprovoked aggression.

3. To fulfill treaty obligations to Portugal, Irak, and Egypt.

Undoubtedly, many observers say, Chamberlain hopes to sit on the sidelines while Hitler's regime either blows up internally, or engages in a death struggle with Communist Russia. Some critics say the prime minister fears Communism even more than Fascism and hence regards Hitler not too unkindly because he sees in him "insurance" against the westward spread of Communism.

More and more, English are beginning to feel that things may not work out as neatly as Chamberlain envisaged.

Much as they abhor war, they are beginning to say: "We'll have to go over there yet and clean up those bloody blighters."

This year, perhaps this spring, should prove whether they are sincere.

As They Parted at Munich

"'Til we meet again" might have been the remark. Here Chamberlain and Mussolini clasp hands after the Munich agreement as Daladier of France looks on. Englishmen wonder what kind of accord the two will "shake" on after the Anglo-Italian conference.

ASTROLOGER FINDS ROMANCES, LUCK FOR FILM STARS IN 1939

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD—IN 1939, if an astrologer's predictions are right, Tyrone Power will marry and Joan Crawford will fall in love . . .

A little girl named Patsy Lee Parson will rival Shirley Temple with an appealing performance, perhaps in "Gone With the Wind."

Robert Taylor will remain a bachelor.

Jeanette MacDonald will overcome an unfortunate planetary influence on her marriage to Gene Raymond.

Gracie Fields, knock-about English comedienne, will score a hit with the American public.

Difficult shoals loom up and must be avoided by the marital barks of Errol Flynn and Lili Damita, John Barrymore and Elaine Barrie, Alice Faye and Tony Martin, and Jon Hall and Frances Langford.

Thus the course of movietown is projected by Norvell, a slender, dark-haired young astrologer, who annually digs down into a bag of zodiacal signs for hints of what each new year portends for human stars.

Last December, he recalls, he predicted Bette Davis' matrimonial rift, Mae West's decision to turn producer, and further legal difficulties for W. C. Fields. He rang the bell on those.

He went amiss in predicting marriage for Carole Lombard, but he is confident this ultimately will come true, particularly since Clark Gable announced he would ask his wife to divorce him.

Among the screen's newer faces, Norvell predicts success for Whitney Bourne, Penny Singleton, Vincent Price, Joy Hodges, James Ellison, John Garfield and June Wilkins.

THIEF LOSES OUT

Drops Loot In Flight When Wife of Victim Screams.

BRADY, Tex.—(INS)—Overconfidence proved a losing policy for a burglar at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Knight. After unlatching the screen door with a wire, the thief walked up to the couple's bed, took the husband's billfold from his trousers, and then stood there counting the bills by the light of a flashlight. Mrs. Knight woke up and screamed, and the burglar dropped part of his loot in making a getaway.

CHARGE FRAUD

Suits Against RCA Officials Claim Waste of Assets.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Present and former officials and directors of the Radio Corporation of America are charged with negligently and fraudulently permitting the dissipation and waste of corporate assets in three stockholders' suits on file today in supreme court.

All three complaints, which became public yesterday, criticize the directors for alleged failure to regain 2,000,000 shares of Radio common stock given to General Electrical company, and Westinghouse in 1932, allegedly in return for certain patent and other rights said to have been terminated by a consent decree in an anti-trust suit.

In formal answers, the individuals and corporate defendants, including Westinghouse and General Electric, denied any wrongdoing. Present and former RCA officials asserted they acted at all times in the best interests of RCA.

ITALY CHARGES 'NEW INSULT'

Fascist Press Attacks Daladier's Visit to Tunisia.

ROME—(AP)—The Fascist press charged today that Italy had suffered "new and vile provocation" in Tunisia as a result of French Premier Daladier's visit there.

The newspaper Il Tevere called Daladier "Edouard the cutthroat."

In a dispatch from Tunis, capital of the French protectorate which has been an object of Fascist territorial clamor, the newspaper accused mounted police of manhandling pro-Italian Arabs.

CHAPTER 42

The University club in Houston is a very large place. When it is full of milling, laughing, dancing couples, it is difficult to find anyone for whom you are looking, unless you are lucky.

Peaches Pomeroy had thought she could go right to the elevator entrance and wait for her bell hop, the boy whom she had sent for a box of aspirin. She had not waited by the checking room counter, as promised, for a definite reason: she did not want to be seen there. Anybody might drift by and see her, and so put two and two together—later.

Her plan was to wait for the boy, take the aspirin and thank him, and watch then for the opportune time to scream that her diamond bracelet had been stolen. She thought it best to wait until later in the evening, toward the end of the dance. But—while she waited at the elevator, she saw her bell hop run up the stairs and dart by without seeing her.

She tried to call him, to follow, but could not see him again. He had disappeared in the throng. Two other costumed servants, spotted at a distance, turned out not to be hers She went back and peered down the hall toward the checkroom, but her boy was not there.

After a few minutes of searching she gave up. It didn't matter anyway. And besides, someone came to claim a dance with her. One of her old crowd. She glanced around looking for Thornton Holgate, but he was not in sight. Well, it was best that she be seen on the floor constantly now. It was best for her plan. She would dance and laugh and be as gay as possible—until the right moment to sound her plotted alarm. She saw no more of the bell hop.

Dr. Thornton Holgate had danced only one dance with his date. Early in the festivities. Peaches had disappeared, and he hadn't been able to find her. He danced once or twice with other girls. But then, he had a very definite course of action mapped out for this evening, and being a man of his word he meant to carry it through. He had given his word to himself.

Therefore, about 10:30 o'clock, he slipped downstairs alone and made his way to a drug store.

"I wish to consider some—ah—dice," he told the clerk.

"How's that?" The clerk hadn't understood.

"Do—do you have—dice? For sale? You know—dice?"

"Oh! Sure, sure! Let's see—here's some for 10 cents And these much better ones, genuine ivory, perfect balance, for 49 cents. And these—"

He had a little tray of them and Thornton selected some white ones. It never occurred to him that he didn't know how to handle them at all. Didn't know the game. Never in all his life had Thornton Holgate shot craps. But he didn't think of that detail now. He had a more difficult mission.

Now, Thornton Holgate had mantained an academic interest in the American liquor situation. He had studied prohibition as one studies naval armaments; or conservation of natural resources, or socialized medicine. He knew that liquor was a problem. He knew the ill effects of drunkenness. He could quote statistics about alcohol, and its effects on the human body and brain. In short, he was quite familiar with liquor—but he had never drunk any, certainly never purchased any, ever.

Moreover, he despised the thought of drunkenness, as a personal consideration. He held drinks in utter contempt. Or sometimes pity. Liquor was repulsive in every sense, to him.

Nevertheless, Dr. Thornton Holgate was thoroughly determined to get some first-hand information about liquor tonight. He had worked himself up to this determination over a period of weeks. He had debated it pro and con with himself. He had decided that he should not be a prude, that conceivably Peaches Pomeroy and her drinking crowd were right, that he must at least learn their side of the question by actual experience.

He had observed before that Peaches liked to drink—nay, to get drunk—at public dances. So he would drink at this one with her, at the risk of reputation, even if it killed him! He also had observed at an earlier dance that she liked to play dice, and that was why he bought the little cubes of ivory. If he was going in for wildness this night, he was determined to do a good job of it.

He had no trouble finding a saloon. It wasn't called a saloon, but it was exactly that. He saw the bottled array on the wall behind the counter.

"I—ah—want a quart of the best." He tried to be nonchalant.

"Best what?" The bartender eyed him.

"I beg pardon?"

"Best what? Gin? Whiskey? Wine? What?"

"Oh! Oh, dear me!" Thornton was pink with embarrassment. Which was a mistake, because the barkeep promptly, if silently, raised his prices 50 per cent, having recognized a sucker.

When he finally got his quart of whiskey and walked out with it, Thornton had a sense of uneasiness. He glanced guiltily at everyone on the sidewalk. He felt like a burglar must feel just after cracking a safe. But he stuck out his chin and went on, on up the University club elevator and into the men's lounge. Some oddment of knowledge told him that men did their initial drinking in the lounge. He would go there and proceed to start his evening of wildness, joining Peaches and others of the "gang" later.

However, it hadn't been easy to start. It had taken more will power than he had anticipated. He had knelt in the private washroom, smelled his open whiskey bottle, and almost had been nauseated! He had begun shaking and throwing his new dice, practicing the mannerisms he had chanced to see in times past. Then all at once his door had popped open, and there was one of his students in bell boy uniform.

"Why—Dr. Holgate!" Worthington Gurley had stammered in utter amazement.

It was as if the freshman had pointed an accusing finger of judgment at him. He, Thornton Holgate, was caught! He who had prided himself on moral stamina, caught by a nice lad at gambling and drinking (he hadn't actually drunk any of the whiskey, but the evidence was there.) The freshman stared, incredulous, before he could speak again. Things had been moving fast for young Gurley, but he tried bravely to ignore what he saw.

"Come with me," the freshman ordered then. "Hurry! You must come at once!"

"No! No, no, Gurley. I—I didn't mean—I'm sorry. You see—I—" Dr. Holgate had to swallow. Profound shame had suffused him. Shame and anger.

"She's put her bracelet in her coat. In the lining—gnawed a hole—down in the lining—I saw her—such a mean look in her eyes—hurry, can't you—valuable bracelet—come on—come on, Dr. Holgate!"

Of course the professor couldn't understand such babbling. Excited now, Worthington spoke incoherently. And Thornton felt only his own deep sense of guilt. He felt that he had been caught at something terrible, and that his sin was about to be exposed. His sin and shame.

"Oh, my goodness—damn!" Dr. Holgate was standing. "Let me explain, Mr. Gurley. You must not be too hasty in judging—"

"HURRY, Dr. Holgate!" The boy wasn't listening, he was talking, and moving around excitedly.

As a matter of fact, he was also trying tactfully if excitedly to ignore what he saw on the floor—the whiskey and dice—he who had idealized Dr. Holgate as a gentleman since the adventurous episode at Galveston a few weeks ago. People everywhere then had declared that Thornton Holgate was clean and fine, a man of high character. To be found like this—Worthington tried to ignore what he saw.

"I must call the police," he declared then, starting to leave.

"NO! Oh, no! Wait!"

Call the police! Dr. Holgate was terrified for an instant. Surely his crime didn't warrant that! He must stop the freshman, and explain somehow. It would never do for him, Thornton Holgate, to have a police record. What would his mother say? And his colleagues? Not to mention his own self-respect and pride?

It did not occur to Thornton in his bewilderment that he had violated no law whatever. Indeed, that he had done absolutely nothing wrong. The mere fact of playing alone with two dice, and of buying and opening a bottle of whiskey, can hardly be called disgraceful. But then, one's intentions—

"My Lord!" he breathed, wishing he had never heard of Peaches Pomeroy. It was for her that he had done these things.

He suddenly hated her. Suddenly knew that he didn't want to marry her, didn't love her, never had loved her, wished he had never seen or heard of her. These thoughts burned through his mind in the moment that he and the young freshman stared at each other, misunderstanding each other's words.

"I guess I've GOT to get the police," Worthington declared, turning to rush away. The young fellow was doubly hurt and scared now.

"Wait!" commanded Dr. Holgate, running to halt him. "Wait, I tell you. I must make all of this clear!"

MARKET SLIDE HALTED NEAR SECOND HOUR

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Cancel Small Initial Losses; Bonds Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market went into an early downward drift today, but offerings were light on the decline and a little selective buying support appeared near the second hour.

On the offside were Chrysler, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, North American, Westinghouse, American Can, Johns-Manville and Cluett Peabody.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem cancelled small initial losses and modest improvement was shown by General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Yellow Truck and Glenn Martin.

Speculative hesitancy was attributed partly to doubts in Wall Street regarding congressional approval of the administration's spending program in its entirety. Also, brokers saw nothing particularly outstanding in the business picture to inspire traders. Bonds and commodities were a trifle mixed.

Market analysts noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said the snap-back in mill operations from the depressed levels prevailing over the holidays was mainly seasonal "since the major share of the gain is compensation for the curtailment of shipments and the reduction of buyers' inventories at the year end."

With the replenishment of stocks, it was added, subsequent changes in steel output will be guided by the trend of consumption.

Virtually all districts participated in the recent rebound, the publication said, with several individual plants boosting schedules higher than any prevailing in 1938. Principal increases were found at Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Wheeling and Detroit.

ECONOMY RULE, BRICKER PLEDGE AT INAUGURAL

G. O. P. Executive Points Out Need to Revitalize State, Local Governments.

tinued the former Ohio attorney general and one-time Madison county farm boy.

"There must be a revitalization of state and local governments throughout the nation. The individual citizen must again be conscious of his responsibilities . . . The preservation of his rights . . . That cannot be done by taking government further away . . . ."

Bricker declared that "many of the new functions of government are desirable," and apparently referred to the general plan of the Social Security program, but said that "waste and unnecessary expenditures must be eliminated."

"I know that tremendous savings can be effected by the application of business principles to the conduct of our state government. If this were not our desire, as it is, it would be necessary today when we are faced, upon taking office, with a deficit reaching approximately $20,000,000.

"The school foundation fund presents approximately a $17,000,000 deficit. The general revenues of the state are in a very uncertain and unsatisfactory condition. To meet the necessary functions of government, money must be saved."

Needs 'Common Honesty.'

Governor Bricker emphasized that another immediate step necessary in the revitalization of government was the "establishment of common honesty in the affairs of government."

"When the privileges of government are purchasable; when the state's business can be bought for a price, the institutions of free government are imperiled."

Those remarks reflected Bricker's campaign promise to "drive every shakedown artist out of the state house." Davey had praised his administration as one of the best in the nation, but it was just a year ago that a senate committee was investigating charges of "legalized graft."

Bricker pledged Ohio to the maintenance of "high standards of universal education," the continuation of poor relief, and "a definite program to bring about the rehabilitation of Ohio agriculture and industry."

The leader in this state of nearly 7,000,000 population, a national cross-section of business, agriculture and industry, touched on the attacks made on democratic processes of government throughout the world.

People Will Rally.

"In many cases nations have reversed the truly liberal trend and accepted the most reactionary forms of government," Bricker said. "We have had the back wash of some of this here at home. But we know now that just as soon as the people of America become alarmed as to the dangers to democracy and free government, they rally to its defense.

"Here in America is the last hope for the preservation of the liberties of mankind. Centuries ago civilization started to march away from autocracy of power and might, toward liberty and individual opportunity. Those steps shall not be retraced here in America. We must keep our charted course."

Tall and erect, dressed in formal clothes, Governor Bricker was sworn in at 2 p. m. by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the state supreme court. His voice, as he swore to defend the constitution of the United States, the constitution of the state of Ohio, was carried to the crowds jamming the statehouse yard by amplifiers and throughout the state by radio broadcast.

As he finished repeating the oath, national guard officers caught a signal and a near-by cannon boomed a 19-gun salute that rattled the statehouse windows in honor of the first Republican governor since 1928. Bricker also is the 20th Republican governor in the history of Ohio and the third in 20 years.

His induction completed the passage of control of the state government from Democratic to Republican hands. Previously oaths had been administered to Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, Cleveland; State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, Akron; Secretary of State Earl Griffith, Mt. Gilead, and Lieutenant Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Columbus. Their installation left State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson as the only elected Democratic administrative officer in the statehouse.

G. O. P. In High Glee.

Republicans who poured into the capital city by bus, automobile and special train from every county celebrated the occasion in high glee after having been denied the fruits of so sweeping a victory for a decade.

The governor stood with the chief justice on a small platform above a larger one reserved for officials, specially invited guests, Republican county chairmen, and close friends.

The Bible, which the blackrobed chief justice held, was opened to the sixth chapter, eighth verse of the Book or Micah in the old testament, a Scriptural passage selected by the governor's mother. She had selected as the appropriate words:

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what Doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and Love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

The governor's mother, Mrs. Laura King Bricker, 75, of Mt. Sterling, his wife, Mrs. Harriet Day Bricker and his eight-year-old adopted son, Jack, had good vantage points from which to see the ceremony. With them were the governor's twin sister, Mrs. Ella Mooney, of Mt. Sterling, her husband, Freeman Mooney, and their 15-year-old daughter, Laurabel.

The governor's mother-in-law, Mrs. Maude Archer Day, of Worthington, also was on the platform. Included among the guests admitted to reserved places were Sen. and Mrs. Robert A. Taft, who arrived from Washington; Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr; former Gov. and Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper, and members of Bricker's new cabinet and their wives.

Escorted To State House.

The official proceedings began at 12:30 p. m. The governor-elect was escorted from a downtown hotel where distinguished guests had been entertained at a reception and breakfast by the inaugural committee and the new governor's military staff. At the executive offices they were joined by the retiring Gov. Martin L. Davey, his staff and other officers. The entire party then moved out to the west portico of the statehouse.

Governor Davey's last act as the state's chief executive after four tumultuous years in the governor's office was to hand the commission of office to his successor. The outgoing governor then withdrew with his staff. He planned to leave immediately for his home in Kent where fellow townspeople had planned a homecoming for him. His new automobile, the gift of state employes, was waiting near the statehouse. Mrs. Davey returned to Kent last week after the Daveys vacated the executive mansion to make way for the new occupants.

O. S. U. Band Plays.

With Mayor Myron B. Gessman, of Columbus, presiding, the inauguration ceremonies opened as the Ohio university band, with the audience joining in the singing, played "The Star Spangled Banner." Rev. Roy A. Burkhart, Columbus, then gave the invocation, followed by the formal induction into office of the four other officials inaugurated ith Bricker. Following Governor Bricker's inaugural address, the Rev. Father William P. O'Connor, chaiplan of the U. S. Veterans hospital at Dayton, pronounced the benediction, and the spectators swarmed into the state house for the governor's reception as the college boy band blared "Hail to the Chief."

Inside the vaulted old rotunda of the statehouse, gaily dressed in flags and bunting for the occasion, a long queue of the Republican "faithful," friends, well-wishers, and the frankly curious filed by the smiling new governor for the handshaking ordeal to which every chief executive is subjected. A number of Governor Bricker's college fraternity brothers in Delta Chi were on hand to congratulate him.

Davey Hangs Out 'Do Not Disturb' Sign.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Always a late riser, Gov. Martin L. Davey made no exception today, his last day in office after four hectic years at the helm of the state government.

The governor vacated the executive mansion last week and has been living at a downtown hotel. He left explicit orders with hotel attaches that he was not to be disturbed before 10:30 a. m. this morning, they said.

These instructions seemed to apply to all, including Daniel S. Earhart, Davey's secretary.

Meanwhile, the governor's suite at the executive office had been cleared of Davey belongings. Desks had been polished and the furniture rented by the Davey administration for the reception room had been returned to its owner.

The desk used by Davey had been removed and in its place stood the one at which Bricker will work. It was of burl walnut inlay and was presented to the new governor by John F. Rees and John M. Orr, of Columbus.

On the desk was a vase of flowers for Bricker and his wife. Back of the desk were two other vases filled with flowers.

The capitol building was alive with city policemen and national guardsmen. They were stationed in pairs at every pillar and post, about 200 of them.

CIO STRUGGLE GRIPS TULSA

Troops 'Referee' as Labor Seeks to Intrench Itself in Oil Industry.

cal struggle. Claiming scattered A. F. of L. symphizers, the C. I. O. council of three states has made open bids to the enemy organization. Competitors have encouraged Mid-Continent officials to maintain their firm stand against strikers and even have urged their own employes to buy Mid-Continent gas to combat the labor boycott.

Tulsa "friends of industrial peace" ran a full-page reprint in a local newspaper from a national magazine recounting the "tragedy of Akron" in the two-year C. I. O. strike series. The warning implied that the current outbreak could ruin Tulsa as the "oil capital of the world."

Jack Hayes, local president of the union (in the face of a conference breakdown, simply agreed "to fight it out." Apparently, he has the financial and moral support of the powerful national organization behind him.

Menwhile, the company claims to be running the big refinery here without curtailment of production. Although the non-strikers are able now to go home occasionally, at the outbreak of the strike they remained inside the plant, hungry, as union pickets blocked the Mid-Continent refinery and rioted in the neighboring area.

Governor Sends Troops.

This brought the request for state militia from Sheriff Garland Marrs which was readily granted by Gov. E. W. Marland, who was head of a multi-million-dollar oil company until he lost his fortune in Wall Street and turned to politics.

Union members have been resentful of the national guard since the soldiers moved pickets from the entrance and opened the gates for business. Guards have been called "strike breakers" and the workers "scabs."

But Adj. Gen. Charles F. Barrett, veteran commander of the state militia, has insisted on maintaining "law and order" in the strike area.

Assisting in the celebration were their son, Clarence Watson of near Shiloh, and daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Ruckman of Mansfield. The couple was married Jan. 8, 1889, at Olena.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Highlights of the inaugural address of Gov. John W. Bricker follow:

"Two immediate steps in the revitalization of government are imperative. The first is to reduce the cost of government. The second is the establishment of common honesty in the affairs of government."

"The school foundation fund presents approximately a 17 million dollar deficit. The general revenues of the state are in a very uncertain and unsatisfactory condition. To meet the necessary functions of government, money must be saved."

"When the privileges of government are purchaseable; when the state's business can be bought for a price, the institutions of free government are imperiled."

* * *

"We must not only honestly administer the affairs of government, but we must convince the people of Ohio that their government is honest, in order that public confidence in government may be returned."

* * *

"The election of last November indicated a trend—nationwide in scope—away from undue centralization of power in Washington, accompanied as it has been by reckless public spending."

* * *

"With all our ability, we shall defend against the abuse of federal power, when it means destruction of our local self-government within it proper sphere."

* * *

"There must be a revitalization of state and local governments throughout the nation. The individual citizen must again be conscious of his responsibility to his government, and alert to the preservation of his rights as a citizen under it. That cannot be done by taking government further away, but by keeping it at home."

* * *

"The mind of man has seen further than the hand of mankind has been able to reach. A parallel exists in our experience in government."

* * *

"It is far more destructive of public confidence in government to fail to administer, or to unfairly administer, enacted laws than it is to fail to enact them in the beginning."

SEEK BENEFITS

429 File Claims for Jobless Insurance First Week.

Maurice K. Wells, manager of the Mansfield district office of the Ohio Unemployment Compensation commission, announced today that 429 claims for unemployment insurance benefits had been filed by Richland and Morrow county residents during the first week the office was open here.

In addition to the claims filed, Wells said, 90 jobless workers had been registered for appointment and that 15 interstate claims, for jobless workers applying for benefits in other states, also had been received.

Wells said that the office in Shelby would now be open on Tuesday and Wednesdays of each week for the filing of claims and the registration of jobless workers. Morrow county unemployed will be served at an office which will be open Thursdays and Fridays of each week at Mt. Gilead.

Bar To Continue Courthouse Drive, Group Renamed

Re-appointed by Judge C. H. Huston, new president of the Richland County Bar association, a three-member committee will confer with county commissioners probably within the next three days on the association's proposal for a new courthouse, Atty. George W. Biddle, chairman of the committee, said today.

The bar association endorsed the committee's report and recommendation with little comment at its annual meeting Friday and the committee was authorized to take its recommendations to the county commissioners.

Attys. William F. Black, L. H. Beam, and Biddle are members of the committee.

In the event a new courthouse is temporarily out of the question, Biddle said the group would urge the installation of an elevator in the present courthouse to eliminate danger to aged persons who must climb stairs to the top floor of the building.

Commissioners have taken a neutral stand on the proposal, asserting that they will favor a vote for a bond issue to finance the building if enough public sentiment is expressed for the new building.

The Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce has indicated it would back the bar association's proposal, and it was expected that other organizations will consider the plan.

Seeks to Impress Hitler.

Many observers felt that Italy was attempting to strengthen her position in order to impress Reichsfuehrer Hitler with the need of some outstanding Italian success to compensate his axis partner for her role at Munich last September.

Both armies in Spain reported victories. The government said its forces were moving westward through southern Spain toward the Portuguese frontier. The insurgents said their armies had forced back the government line in the northeast and merged for a new drive toward Barcelona, the government's capital.

The Hungarian minister to Prague, now in Budapest, delayed his return in a strong hint that recent border clashes of armed forces had endangered Hungarian diplomatic relations with Czechoslovakia.

The border itself was quiet but the Hungarian press printed a foreign office statement that another incident would have far-reaching consequences. Hungary strengthened her forces near the scene of border fighting Friday and yesterday and both countries were reported quietly expelling citizens of the other.

Offered at sheriff's sale Saturday on a partition order, a lot on Newman street failed to attract any bids. The property, appraised at $3,500, will be re-appraised and advertised again, sheriff's attaches said.

It was ordered sold on a court order obtained by Glenn A. Bookwalter who claims an interest in the lot and residence. The action was against Katherine Wolf and others as claimants to the property.

programs will be presented from Wednesday through Saturday. Huston said a longer fair would provide more revenue at the same expense.

In view of the better financial showing last year, there was little opposition to the July fair, although the board wavered briefly between the last week of July and the first week of August.

Adopts 6 Amendments.

The board adopted six minor amendments to its by-laws. They provide for:

1—Attendance of the fair board chairman and any other representatives of the board at the Ohio fair meeting in Columbus this week with their expenses paid; 2—the rejection of any entry of an exhibitor if the board thinks it advisable; 3—payment of at least one-fourth of the entry fee when the entry is made; 4—assignment of all entries to space in display halls in the order in which they are received; 5—all entries must be made by 5 p. m. on the Thursday preceding the fair; 6—no animal on exhibit may be removed from the grounds on the last day of the fair without permission of the fair president and the superintendent of the department in which the animal is exhibited.

Officers said the changes would eliminate much of the confusion in handling exhibits.

Because of the absence of Wolf, the board president, who is on a vacation trip to Mexico, C. S. Henry, vice president, was in charge of Saturday's meeting. C. G. Tugend of Worthington township, was temporary chairman during the election of officers for 1939.

The boy, who was taken home by Flood, ran into the car while playing, police said.

Clifford Luther, 18, of Portsmouth, received severe lacerations on his face and head near Loudonville, Sunday morning, when his car sped down a hill and turned over three times after he had lost control of the machine. The accident occurred at the home of his aunt, Mrs. LeRoy Elliott, west of Loudonville.

Three members of one family headed the list of nine fatalities in the state as an auto-truck collision at Lima took the lives of Mrs. Ethel Carder, 40, her son, Robert, 20, and daughter, Dorothy, 13 months. Mrs. Carder's husband, Samuel, 47, and five others were injured.

Rev. Roy I. Snider, 55, pastor of the Elmwood Methodist church at Cincinnati, was killed when his automobile was struck by a fast passenger train.

Rance Cordle, 50, was killed in an accident near Portsmouth in which his wife, Cora, 48, and daughter, Mrs. Carl Ruby, were seriously injured.

Accidents in which automobiles crashed into bridges claimed the lives of two Ohioans, Mrs. John E. Mackey of Ashtabula, and L. M. Staley, 38, of Sidney, O., at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Pedestrians who died of injuries suffered when struck by automobiles included: Joseph Simpson, 50, of Massillon; Ula Meadows, 23, Middletown; and James Loney, 54, Youngstown.

Motorist Perils Police Car And It Costs Him $10

Haste makes waste—and sometimes is hard on the purse, a Mansfield motorist learned today when he was hailed into municipal court on charges of careless and reckless driving.

Because he didn't wait to let the approaching traffic pass him before making a left hand turn at Main and Fourth streets early Sunday, Lester P. Argole, 211 Wayne street, paid a fine of $10 and costs.

The oncoming traffic in this case happened to be one of the police crusers and Capt. Jesse Schwab testified that he had to "jam on the brakes" to keep from colliding with Argole's car when he made the turn in front of him.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch outlined to the driver the law which requires a motorist making a left hand turn to wait until approaching traffic has passed before completing the turn, stating that there are "hundreds of others" guilty daily of the infraction of this law but that Argole had made the mistake of pulling on front of the squad car.

GALION—Clara McGrath was admitted to the Good Samaritan hospital Friday night for treatment.

FINDS EUROPE 'WORRIED SICK' BY UPHEAVALS

Foreign Affairs Expert Says There Won't Be a Major War During 1939.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Back from a four-months roving assignment abroad, Dewitt MacKenzie, veteran Associated Press foreign affairs writer, said today the people of Europe both in the democracies and totalitarian states "are worried sick."

In the dictatorships, he said, the man in the street knows little, if anything, of what is going on and gains what information he has from government-controlled press and radio. In the democracies, MacKenzie added, the people have the facts but the interpretation of those facts "is faulty and foggy."

MacKenzie said that in many places during his work in 14 countries, the people were asking him questions.

"The people of England have changed since the Munich agreement," said MacKenzie. "They have hardened against dictatorships."

He explained that citizens of France and Britain knew that Hitler was going to annex a part of Czechoslovakia, but they are just beginning to realize that the whole of Czechoslovakia had come "completely under the domination of the reich and did not foresee the vivisection of the country."

"The people of England, many of them," he added, "are horrified over what happened to Czechoslovakia."

MacKenzie said that, broadly speaking, people in the totalitarian states have more or less accepted their situation as inevitable.

Sees Passive Revulsion.

"The dictators, in many countries, have a strong following but you do find in most of the dictatorships a revulsion against the regimentation, although it is more or less a mental reaction of the intellectuals, passive and no strong enough to make them fight."

MacKenzie predicted that 1939 would see no major war.

"I think Europe is definitely headed for a showdown," he said, "it isn't likely in the immediate future, but it is on the way."

The writer said the people of Europe, as a whole, "have been shocked at the methods employed in handling the Semitic problem in Germany and this applies to Germany's ally, Italy and others with a Semitic problem of their own."

MacKenzie said he had not the slightest difficulty in carrying out his assignments and that there was no interference with his work. He added that he wrote facts which some of the dictators might not have liked to see published, but he encountered no protests.

"In many instances I was given assistance," he said, "although it is true that in some totalitarian states, one encounters heavy obstruction in collection of news, even though the censorship would not operate against it if it once was obtained."

LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL"

advises HANS THORNER

Skiing expert and director of the Mount Washington (N. H.) Swiss Ski School

HUNDREDS OF SKIERS have made their début to this fascinating winter sport under Hans Thorner's expert guidance. One skiing principle he stresses is: "Don't let your nerves get tense, keyed-up." His advice to pupils: "Pause regularly—let up—light up a Camel."

MODERN SKIING is a telling test of skill, stamina, and nerve-power. Nerves simply must not waver. Skiers, particularly, know how well it pays to protect their nerves—to rest them frequently—by letting up—lighting up a Camel.

BETWEEN ORGANIZING CLASSES, checking up on equipment, giving exhibitions, and arranging a host of other activities, there's plenty of nerve strain in Hans Thorner's day too! Above you see him taking his own advice about the way to avoid getting tense, jittery. He's letting up to light up a Camel. "It's a grand way to break nerve tension," says Thorner. "I find Camels quite soothing to the nerves."

"AN ACCOUNTANT'S WORK calls for absolute accuracy," says Mr. C. W. McArthur. "That means concentration, plenty of nerve strain. My rule to avoid tension is to ease off now and then—to let up—light up a Camel."

Copyright, 1939, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

WHEN BUSY, STRENUOUS days put your nerves on the spot, take a tip from the wire fox terrier pictured here. Despite his almost humanly complex nerve system, he quickly halts to relax—to ease his nerves. So often, we humans ignore this instinctive urge to break nerve tension. We may even take pride in our will to drive on, forgetting that tiring nerves may soon be jittery nerves! Yet the welfare of your nerves is really vital to success, happiness. Make it your pleasant rule to pause regularly—to LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL. Start today—add an extra measure of comfort to your smoking with Camel's finer, costlier tobaccos.

MONDAY, JANUARY 9, 1939.

Spring in January lacks permanency.

As you may have noticed, this is the "after the first of the year" that you postponed paying bills until.

Word comes that Russia plans production of a low-priced automobile for the "common people," with 16½ years allowed to pay for it—which seems to give an idea, if anyone cares for it.

Leakage In Retail Sales Tax.

COLLECTION of retail sales tax in Ohio has been going from bad to worse, until it is now estimated that state funds are being deprived of as much as $12,000,000 a year because of leaks in sales tax receipts.

Lack of public interest in demanding sales tax receipts, coupled with resentment over the excessive tax on small purchases, is believed largely responsible for shrinkage in collections.

The yield from sales tax in 1938 was only 38 million dollars, as compared with 60 million in 1936 and 50 million in 1937. It is estimated that removal of sales tax on food accounts for a reduction of about 10 million dollars, but there is still an annual shortage of approximately 12 million dollars to be accounted for.

A number of apparently practical suggestions have been offered for more business-like administration of the sales tax department, and for reduction of chiseling by some vendors who do not give stamps when the tax is paid, or who neglect to collect the tax.

With elimination of some of the other slipshod methods of conducting state business, there is hope that the incoming administration will also find ways in which the sales tax revenues will more accurately reflect the total of taxable sales being made in Ohio.

Good Selection for High Court.

MORE as a matter of form than through any actual need in this instance, the senate will conduct a public hearing on the appointment of Felix Frankfurter to the United States supreme court, before voting confirmation.

Such procedure was decided upon as a regular thing, following the embarrassment that resulted from hasty confirmation of Hugo Black's appointment to the supreme court last year.

Aside from appearance of close association with New Deal policies of President Roosevelt, the fitness of Mr. Frankfurter for a place on the highest court must be obvious to everyone familiar with his record, and it may be noted that his sound thinking carried to expression of opposition to the president's court-packing proposal.

In a poll of American lawyers, conducted several months ago as to choice for a supreme court appointee, Frankfurter's name led by a wide margin, and this was also the expression of other polls among persons equipped with comparative judgment on this subject.

Having a brilliant mind and a knowledge of the law that is nationally respected, confidence may be felt that Mr. Frankfurter will maintain an intellectual integrity that will make him a valuable and worthy member of the nation's highest tribunal.

Considering a New Courthouse.

WHILE there will be quite general agreement with the idea that Richland county's old courthouse might well be replaced with a modern structure that would better meet present increased requirements, the item of cost is one that will doubtless receive public consideration—as well as being taken into account by the county commissioners.

Suggestion that now is the proper time to build a new courthouse, because of likelihood that a federal grant might be secured to meet part of the construction cost, is not particularly appealing to thoughtful taxpayers who are beginning to realize that it is upon such grants that enormous government expenditures are being justified and that a gigantic public debt is being piled up which must eventually be paid by increased taxation.

If, as would have been the requirement under sound government operation, the voters of Richland county favor a bond issue in sufficient amount to meet the costs of erecting and equipping a new courthouse, it appears there should be no serious objection to the proposal.

This seems to be the attitude of the board of county commissioners on the subject.

Meanwhile, if it is practicable to add to the convenience of elderly attorneys, and other older persons who have occasion to visit the courthouse, by installing an elevator in the present structure, this might well be done.

Better Than Magic.

RECENT discoveries whereby glass is rendered invisible and steel transparent are a little awesome to the unscientific reader. They might have made even Merlin and others of the ancient wizard fraternity jealous. Those old fellows were credited with a lot of smart tricks done with the aid of incantations and demons, but the modern research scientist has improved on both their methods and their works.

As a matter of fact, science seems more remarkable than magic. Merlin told his most powerful spell to a pretty girl, who then used it to shut him up forever in a cave or a hollow tree or something, and he wasn't able to get himself out. The modern laboratory research man never reaches the end of his power nor the last of the possibilities he has dreamed of.

Scientific Tolerance.

THE 280 members of the American Anthropological association at their recent meeting in New York adopted a resolution attacking the "distortion of anthropology." It is distortion, they say to use the terms Aryan and Semitic as the Nazis use them. Those words have "no racial significance," the scientists say, and "simply denote linguistic families."

Furthermore, "anthropology provides no scientific basis for discrimination against any people on the ground of racial inferiority, religious affiliation or linguistic heritage."

Science, it is interesting to note, starts from a different spot, but reaches a point close to two great religious teachings—the brotherhood of man and the Golden Rule.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—one truly fundamental change in the relief situation as it comes up once more is that members of congress now can look at the problem with a greater degree of objectivity, without the need of damning or defending Harry Hopkins.

The change may bring calmer thinking in the search for solutions, even though the actual facts of relief are as difficult to dissolve as ever.

However just or unjust, a great many congressmen have suspected at least a trace of social workers' racket in the setup, and Harry Hopkins, himself a social worker and chief of the WPA until recently, has come to symbolize whatever was faulty in it. The report of the senate elections committee scolded the WPA for what went on in Tennessee and Kentucky during the primaries.

Those are only two states. Senators and representatives from other states have complaints, most of which they they were eager to lay to Hopkins as he was the one public figure connected with WPA whose name meant something in the public prints.

Confidence In the Army.

NOW Hopkins is out of relief and in the cabinet. Replacing him is Colonel Francis C. Harrington, an army engineer. So far as this correspondent's recollection goes, there is no branch of the government in which congress places such trust as in the army engineers. Probably President Roosevelt knew that too. Congress has voted scores of millions for flood control and most members have been content simply to know that the army engineers had placed an okay on the expenditure.

As to relief, the problems of 1933 still remain. Actual figures vary, but the present 10,000,000 or more of unemployed is probably within two or three million of the 1932-33 peak. Costs of extending relief have advanced steadily, in part due to the greater exhaustion of the poor man's resources, and in part to the insistence of the administration that workers on relief were entitled to better than a dole income.

As Col. Harringon took over, WPA rolls were near an all time peak at above 3,000,000. While WPA workers were moving into private industry at the rate of 200,000 a month, others were displaced and coming on the rolls at the rate of 300,000 a month as congress met.

Few, if any, congressmen advocate outright termination of relief. But part and parcel of the relief theory has been that the expenditures primed the pump of industry, creating more private jobs. This has been one of the arguments in support of maintaining the costlier work relief in contrast with the half-as-costly direct relief. One group of administration and congressional advisors still argues for continued pump priming but others, noting the persisting high unemployment levels, now doubt that it works so well.

Seek Big Income Jump.

MORE than ever a search is being made to incite an increase in the national income from the present $60,000,000,000 level to something between $80,000,000,000 and $100,000,000,000 where it is considered certain the demand for help would be so great that only the utterly unemployable would remain on relief.

That is why, as the relief problem comes up for its ninth year, congress is looking to other ways of meeting the situation.

Already formal or informal attention has been given to such approaches as:

Tax reduction rewards to companies with employ profit sharing plans.

Similar awards to companies scrapping old machines for new, with consequent stimulation of the heavy goods industries.

Complete elimination of the corporate surplus profits tax.

Reduction of upper bracket income taxes with a view to bestirring enterprises to undertake new ventures.

Elimination of tax-exempt securities to block this "escape" for lazy or nervous capital.

But when congress ends there will be a WPA—with money to spend.

Lottery Proposal Called 'Foolish'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congress does not take to the idea of a governmentally established and managed lottery to finance, in part, the District of Columbia—that is to say, Washington, the national capital.

The scheme was proposed by Lewis R. Perkins, attorney for an outfit known as the Society for Liquidation of the Public Dept. Perkins outlined it in a letter to Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the house of representatives' ways and means committee. Doughton has not said much about it yet, but Representative Ross A. Collins, who is chairman of a sub-committee on appropriations for the District, has referred to it as "the biggest fool suggestion I ever heard of." Comment by other lawmakers is in quite general agreement with him.

Insofar as Attorney Perkins' plan applies only to the District of Columbia it it of no more than local interest. However, the lottery method of raising cash for public purposes evidently appeals to a great many folk on a far larger than a merely local scale—perhaps on a national one. It has been urged frequently and is mentioned oftener and oftener—not by regular economists but by volunteer advisers on the subject of revenue sources. I would not wonder if, sooner or later, it might not begin to make some converts on Capital Hill. These funny-money notions are pretty contagious.

Not So Foolish.

I entirely concur in Congressman Collins' judgment that a governmentalized lottery would be wholly undesirable—in fact, a vicious influence.

But it is not exactly "a fool suggestion."

Government lotteries pay like sixty. I have lived in several countries where they have them and there is not any doubt that they are enormously profitable—to the government; not to the suckers who play them.

Representative Collins contends that legalization of that kind of gambling would be an encouragement to "numbers," horse-race-betting, roulette, games of chance of all sorts. He is mistaken, evidently never having seen the system in operation.

Where a government sets itself up as a gambling house proprietor, it is as hostile to any clandestine gambling as our treasury department is to tariff smuggling. It is furious at any attempt to infringe on its monopoly.

I have seen the system worked intensively in the Argentine republic, where there is a government lottery. There also is another gambling concession farmed out privately to the Jockey club—racing. Between these two setups (governmental and governmentally authorized) Argentina is policed to a bee's knee. It is dangerous to conduct even a little social poker game there or a bridge evening.

Ditto other countries where restricted gambling is legalized for governmental profit. It is the rule in Latin America.

The game is fair, all right — gamblerishly considered.

But socially speaking?

Winners Are Losers.

Lottery winners do not make much, anyway.

The grand prizes are substantial, but the tickets usually are split up among a multiplicity of holders; no individual winner gets more than enough for one good "bust."

Years ago, a certain Nicholas Mihanovich, won at Buenos Aires on a single grand ticket. He got a huge bunch of dough at that shot, invested it judiciously and now the multimillionaire Mihanovich Line controls shipping up and down the Platte, Parana and Paraguay rivers from Buenos Aires to Asuncion. That one lucky shot is the only one I ever heard of in connection with Latin American government lotteries.

But it has advertised them a billion dollars' worth.

I think it is a cheap way of making money for a government.

Views On Lynchings.

Editor News-Journal:

In the editorial in last Friday's News-Journal, under the caption, "Fewer Lynchings Than Ever Before," I wish to mention a few inaccuracies in this optimistic report. I heartily agree with the statistics on the subject, and as a member of the race to which the lynchers look for their victims, I am highly gratified at the apparent decline in this uncivilized pastime.

Originally a Southerner, and having a keen admiration for the South, its climate, great open spaces, etc., I agree reluctantly, that it is the chief offender in this regard. But when the writer says that "rape and other offenses against women have been the principal causes of resort to mob violence," I am forced to dissent.

The records at Tuskegee Institute, compiled over a number of years, will show that Negroes have been lynched for the heinous "crime" of bumping against white people on the streets, for stealing a pig, for the mythical offense of being "sassy" to white youths, for disputing an account at a plantation store, for moving away from a farm without the owner's consent, for shooting at a white man, for being related to a Negro who had committed some petty offense against southern prejudice.

Hundreds of cases have come to light where a white criminal blackened his features, got a Negro lynched, and went his way rejoicing. Negroes deplore the charge so loosely placed against them, and of which they are so seldom guilty. They are often sinned against in this respect, as witness the disproportionate number of mulattoes, people who are neither white nor black. If they are such rampant rapists in the South, why are they not rapists in the North?

Lynching declined last year because Southern leaders who have always opposed it, brought strong pressure to bear upon their unenlightened brethren by reminding them of an impending anti-lynch law, and because Southern white women of culture and character came out strongly against the crime, and disclaimed any need for lynching as a measure of protection.

But inasmuch as we need a game law in Ohio, we need an anti-lynch law for those southern states which heretofore have shown no regard for human life, especially when that life was the life of a Negro, for just as soon as the pressure upon congress dies down for such a law, there will be a wholesale recurrence of lynching all over the deep South.

A Farmer's Diary

Brother-in-law.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HE IS a city man, to the nth power. Because he is my antithesis in so many ways, he interests me; and because he is a good fellow, even though he thinks me queer, I like him. He has always lived in a thriving city. His only time away was while he attended a small town college, for four years. From there he went to graduate school, in his home town, and now has a modern brick veneer, and a solid position in a busy suburb.

He is meticulously accurate. His wardrobe contains garb for every possible occasion, and he's a stickler for etiquette. He pigeonholes his facts, or keeps them in neat files. He has no children, although he admires some of them, at a distance.

He delights in winning at bridge, and he usually does win. He is good at bowling, and knows the players of the big league teams by name and reputation. He likes radio and is a movie fan. He is a generous, genial host, a widely read, quick-thinking gentleman. He hates camping out, and his nearest approach to roughing it, enjoyably, is to chase a golf ball into the unmowed portions of the course. He's good at golf.

He is fond of company, and shrinks in delicate distaste from the solitude and "rawness" of the farm. He speaks freely and intelligently of sewage disposal plants—and is offended by the word "manure," even in print.

And he's consistent. I took him out to my place once, and he eyed my growing crops of beans and buckwheat without enthusiasm. He was tolerant, but bored.

"I'm frank to say a farm don't mean a thing to me, except a place to go to town from," he remarked. "I wouldn't drive my new car over roads like these, on a bet."

Yet, when he made a trip to Washington, D. C., he took some pains to send me a full account of an exhibit of soybean products he had seen, and thought I would enjoy. In fact, once the things were bottled and labeled, chemically analyzed, and pigeonholed, he had found pleasure in looking at it, himself.

We speak two different languages, he and I, although his wife and mine are sisters. We have a mutual understanding and respect, but we never could wear each other's shoes.

Listen, World!

"Make Straight His Paths."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"In those days come John the Baptist preaching in the wilderness of Judeah, and saying—'Repent yet; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. For this is He that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight"!'"

—St. Matthew 3: 1-3.

SEVEN HUNDRED sleek, successful business men, gathered in New York's Hotel Astor to discuss current economics with financial wizard, Roger Babson. A far cry from this cultured 20th century statistician to that young fanatic, stalking out of the desert 1908 years ago, a leather girdle around his lean, bronzed loins, his desert fare of honey and parched locusts in a pouch...his wild cry skirling high above the frightened crowds—

A far cry, indeed! Yet I wonder if it would seem as far if one measured it in pulse beats instead of miles or years? Strange how little change Time makes in empty stomachs and breaking hearts! Young John knew the pity of them. Roger Babson must have been thinking of their misery as he looked across that pleasant expanse of shining linen and smiling faces, into the glittering, grim rabbit-warren of New York.

Or did a headless ghost stalk softly to his chair...and did a fettered hand, long dead, touch living lips with deathless fire? Else how could the old cry have leaped again to life across these long, long years? How could he, amidst calm talk of "trends" and "salesmanship," have suddenly cried out—"WE MUST RETURN TO GOD"?

"REPENT YOU....REPENT YE!....PREPARE YE THE WAY OF THE LORD, MAKE STRAIGHT HIS PATHS!" young John had warned, facing the fly-brown splendor of a Jerusalem once consecrate to God, now grown corrupt and callous beneath Rome's wanton rule.

"OH, GENERATION OF VIPERS, WHO....FLEE FROM THE WRATH TO COME....BRING FORTH FRUITS MEET FOR REPENTENCE!" the desert mystic thundered, noting weakness and perversion where once there had been healthy growth.

"We need a revival of religion ...a different attitude toward life," declares Roger Babson. Then adds, "There is more religion in Wall Street today than in any other section of New York and certainly more than in the western section of the country. Why? Because they have been through the purge. The great mass of the country has not been through the purge...it has been running on anesthetic....THE AMBITION OF THE AVERAGE PERSON TODAY IS TO RIDE IN THE CART RATHER THAN TO HELP PULL IT."

Grim words....stark and staunch as the forthright thoughts and acts of those Puritan fathers who built America...or those God-fearing Israelites who built the first Jerusalem with their sweat and sacrifice. For always, in any good beginning, there must be struggle and sacrifice. And always, when the struggle ceases and the way grows soft, THERE IS DANGER AHEAD.

THERE IS DANGER AHEAD FOR AMERICA TODAY. But it is not the danger of an imported Ism or a currency inflation—IT IS THE DANGER OF OUR OWN SOFTENING.

America needs God today, says Roger Babson. And in frightened, chastened Wall Street, he adds, some of us are catching a glimpse of the old faith and fire. But he is wrong, I believe, in thinking that Wall Street has seen the light first. I write for Young America and Young America writes to me, thousands of letters per week. And never—not even in Puritan times—was there such a clamor for righteousness in our dairy life, as there is in the hearts of Young America today.

"Flaming Youth!" they have been called contemptuously. FLAMING YOUTH THEY ARE—IN EAGER, GLORIOUS REALITY! They are sick of their elders' cowardice, hypocricy, laziness, indifference and greed. They are weary of our pompous sermons and our pouty threats. THEY WANT ACTION — AS YOUNG JOHN, IN HIS NAKED FURY, WANTED ACTION, AND DON'T FOOL YOURSELF — THEY'LL GET IT! GOD FORGIVE US IF WE DON'T GIVE IT TO THEM—THE RIGHT WAY.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It must be true, the saying that people who get along best are those who are always themselves. Pretense is only a transparent veneer. You can hold a mask to your face only so long, and then it slips and people see through you.

Take Gladys Cooper, the actress. She is the most natural and one of the most fundamentally honest persons I ever saw. No sham or pretense whatever. The other day I was talking with her and a young lady of about nine came in.

"This is my daughter," she said, and she turned to the child, "Run along now, dear, Mother's busy."

After the girl had gone I told her how amazed I was that she had such a grown-up daughter.

"I don't see why," she replied. "I'm well into the forties." And that's what I mean. Most women on the stage or in professional life who look as young as Miss Cooper would die rather than admit their age.

ANOTHER celebrity who is himself at all times is Billy Rose. I admire tremendously the way he handles himself in public. In meeting people, I mean. Usually his cabaret-restaurants are filled with celebrities. Do you think he is impressed? He is as courteous and casual with a newsboy as he would be with the Duke of Windsor.

The other night at the "Diamond Horseshoe," a throw-back to the 1890's which, I suppose, can best be described as an idea with handle-bar mustaches, dozens of celebrated orchestra leaders, actors and impresarios were there to see what they thought of Billy's new show. Many of them had their wives with them, and most of these wives were applauding loudly at everything that happened and making obvious efforts to convey their enthusiasm to Rose. At the conclusion of each act they would bang their noise-makers against the table and smile at Billy. It looked to this observer as if they were dying to be noticed.

He was pleasant and courteous, yes, but that stuff doesn't get to him. He wasn't beaming with that gee-I'm-so-grateful attitude. Having droves of celebrities around him is no novelty; sometimes I imagine it is a bore, but he is too shewd a business man to show it.

I think he's got the right idea about the whole business. You are well treated by him, but Joe Doaks of Hamlet, Wis., receives as much consideration as the president of the United States.

ANOTHER take-me-as-I-am lad is one Jack Dempsey, who used to be something of a pugilist. Jack is a happily married man now, rich and contented. But when you go to his house he says, "Come in, boys. Take off your shoes and make yourself at home." He is a hand-shaker because he has to be. Everybody wants to shake hands with him. But he is no hand-kisser. There is a difference.

DAVEY'S 'LAST' ORDER SPARES YOUNG SLAYER

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Gov. Martin L. Davey in one of his last official acts today commuted the death sentence of Albert Lippe to life imprisonment.

Lippe, one of five Cleveland youths convicted in the slaying of two Cleveland policemen in December, 1937, had been scheduled to die Jan. 11.

Carl Ferrito was executed Nov. 3 for the slayings, and three other youths are serving life.

Davey said the evidence showed that Lippe sat in an automobile and did not actively participate in the shooting of Officers Gerald Bode and Virgil Bayne, who were guarding a frequently-robbed filling station.

"Unequal Justice.'

Davey said that since the actual killer, Ferrito, already had been executed, and one of the others who was active in the crime had received life, he felt that the electrocution of the 21-year-old Lippe would have been "a very serious case of unequal justice."

Harry W. Jewell, chairman of the state parole board which recommended clemency for Lippe, said that if the sentence had not been commuted, it would have been "the worst case of unequal justice in my memory."

The board had recommended commutation unanimously.

Davey also announced that he was granting full pardons to Dan and John Boggs, two of the Ohio penitentiary's most famous prisoners, whose terms were commuted four years ago by Gov. George White.

The Boggs brothers were sent to prison for life Jan. 16, 1925, for the slaying of Harry T. Magill, jr., a Hillsboro peace officer who had arrested them for possession of burglar tools.

Untrained rural youths when they entered the penitentiary, the Boogs brothers set out to improve themselves. Dan started a printing and advertising business while behind the walls, and was said to have grossed about $15,000 a year, supporting their mother and other relatives.

Both Now Successful.

John studied medicine and law. Freed after 10 years, both became successful business men.

Davey, in announcing the pardons, said John Boggs was about to be admitted to the bar in Oklahoma and a pardon was necessary for this purpose.

The brothers always maintained they were innocent of the Magill slaying and that a companion shot the officer accidentally.

Dan Boggs, who now operates a Columbus printing shop, is 34 years old; John is 36.

In another clemency action, Davey pardoned William H. Schwartz, who has been free on parole after serving part of a one to 20-year term for manslaughter in Cuyahoga county. Davey said that after the parole, the trial judge stated Schwartz never should have been convicted.

Capone Taken to Terminal Island To Finish Term

SAN PEDRO, Cal. — (U.P.) — Al Capone entered the final period of his prison term on Terminal island, the government's most modern correctional institution, today.

A guard said that he was "screwy as a bed bug" from advanced paresis. He was not expected to be allowed visitors, even his wife, before he is released on Nov. 19, with good behavior and payment of the outstanding $20,000 on a $50,000 fine. At Alcatraz he could receive one visitor once a month.

Capone was brought here Saturday from Alcatraz, "The Rock," in San Francisco bay. Federal prisoners, in sound health, ordinarily are released in the county where they were convicted. Under this procedure, Capone would have been taken by Jan. 19 at the end of his 10-year felony term, to Cook county, Ill., jail to serve a one-year misdemeanor sentence.

The bequest was revealed today when B. A. Bingham, deputy clerk in the inheritance division of probate court announced that Lindbergh owed the state and Cuyahoga county $70 in inheritance taxes. VACATION ENDS FOR 400 PUPILS

A prolonged Christmas vacation ended today for 400 Mansfield junior high school pupils who went back to their classes in the annex at the John Simpson building.

Although wreckers were still demolishing the brick walls of the old building, a barricade was erected to keep pupils away from the razing activities and school officials said there was no danger to pupils.

An entrance to the annex, erected 28 years ago, was provided through an alley to the rear of the building. Teachers will be on duty outside the building while pupils are entering or leaving the building to prevent them from getting in the path of falling bricks and timbers.

The school annex and gymnasium will be retained as a part of the new John Simpson building for which construction bids will be opened at noon Wednesday.

About 900 other pupils who formerly attended classes in the old building are being housed at Senior high and Hedges Junior high buildings, in the Warner building on North Main street, and a garage building at 20 Bowman street.

The other pupils returned to their classes last Wednesday while vacation for the 400 at the Simpson annex was extended to permit workmen to demolish top portions of the John Simpson building.

POLLS TO CLOSE

Last Troop Votes Tonight in Scout Primaries.

With only one troop still to cast its votes in the annual Boy Scout primaries, ballots will be tabulated tonight and the nominees announced tomorrow.

Floyd Dent, area scout executive, said Troop No. 8 of the First Congregational church is the only unit that has not voted in the primaries. This troop was given permission to vote at its regular meeting tonight, because it was unable to meet last week.

Last Tuesday was originally set as the day for the primaries, but the voting was extended through Saturday because it was inconvenient to get all troops to hold their meetings on the same night, Dent said.

Results of the primaries will be tabulated by the scout board of elections.

BRIEF SESSION

Legislature Reports for Inaugural; No Business.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The Republican-controlled legislature, only one week old, came back to Columbus today to attend the inaugural of Gov.-Elect John W. Bricker and to prepare for the consideration of two tax bills designed to aid the shaky school foundation fund.

The house and senate were to hold brief sessions, with no business being transacted, and recess until tomorrow when work was to begin in earnest.

The bills now under consideration by the taxation committee were those extending the liquid fuel and cigaret excise taxes, from which is derived money to finance the foundation fund.

One of the final acts of the last legislature, which went out of existence Dec. 31, was to introduce the bills.

Dems Divided In Reaction Toward Roosevelt Speech

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Democratic congressmen were divided today in their reaction to President Roosevelt's Jackson day appeal for party unity behind Liberal principles.

Most of the conservative members, declining to be quoted by name, made it clear they believed the chief executive had not advanced Democratic solidarity by his declaration:

"If there are nominal Democrats who as a matter of principle are convinced that our party should be a conservative party—a Democratic tweeldedum to a Republican tweedledee—it is on the whole better that the issue be drawn within the party, that the fight be fought out, and that if the tweedledums are defeated they join the tweedledees."

Administration followers, on the other hand, praised the president's invitation for "nominal Democrats" to join the Republicans and his invitation to all voters who "preach the Liberal gospel" to band together for common service, irrespective of party."

INDIANA DEMS WAIT M'NUTT'S FORMAL BID FOR PRESIDENCY

(By United Press)

INDIANAPOLIS—Paul V. McNutt, educator, former governor of Indiana and U. S. high commissioner to the Philippine islands, formally announces today his candidacy for the 1940 presidential nomination.

A select group of ranking Hoosier politicians will meet this afternoon in the office of Frank McHale, Indiana Democratic national committeeman, place McNutt's name in the lists as a "middle-of-the-road" candidate, then open a headquarters from which the drive to install him in the white house will be directed. The meeting will culminate a quiet movement which has been going on for two years, and make McNutt the first avowed candidate of either party for the 1940 campaign.

McHale may also announce when McNutt will resign his Philippine post and return to the United States.

In the past year McHale has traveled thousands of miles contacting Democratic leaders and trying to line up delegates to the 1940 convention. He claims considerable support in Colorado, California, New York, Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, the south, and of course a solid Indiana delegation.

McHale said McNutt is being offered as a "middle-of-the-road" candidate because he has a liberal record as governor, yet is highly regarded by business men as a conservative. He said McNutt's candidacy on that basis had been received favorably at meetings in New York and Chicago last month.

Dietrich and Ashland College Dean Considered for Bowling Green Presidency.

(By Associated Press)

LIMA—Dr. E. B. Pedlow, chairman of the board of trustees of Bowling Green State university, said today E. N. Dietrich, state director of education, was being considered for the university presidency.

Five other candidates also are possibilities, he said. They are Dr. Homer R. Dunathan, president of Findlay college, Dr. Walter L. Collins, president of Wilmington college, Carlton Reiser, Wood county attorney and business man, L. W. Reese, superintendent of Washington Court House schools, and Dean E. J. Albaugh of Ashland college.

The vacancy was caused by the death of a week ago of Dr. Roy E. Offenhauer, killed in an automobile crash at Findlay.

Director Dietrich was appointed to his present position by Gov. Martin L. Davey for a term ending July 3, 1939.

USE DYNAMITE

Firemen Control Blaze Which Destroyed 15 N. Y. Buildings.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—(AP)—Three charges of dynamite set off by firemen brought under control today a fire that had destroyed 15 of 18 buildings in the former Moline Plow company plant here.

Fire Chief Chris W. Noll said the dynamite was used to raze walls of the destroyed buildings and prevent the fire from spreading to nearby factory structures.

Last year's assessment on the property, which was taken over by the city at tax sale, was $240,000. When the plant was a going concern it was assessed at $1,000,000. There was no insurance.

Ailing Mansfield Lady Wins Relief After Suffering Years

Declares "Vendol" Helped Wonderfully from kidney weakness, dizziness, upset stomach and other troubles associated with constipation.

Never a day passes now but what some Mansfield resident comes back to the Central Drug Store and tells the Vendol Man how his medicine has done them worlds of good. Some of the reports are really outstanding, one such being that of Mrs. Cora I. Davidson of 314 Ninth Ave., Mansfield, who says:

"For years there was hardly a night that I could sleep through without being awakened by my kidneys until I began taking Vendol a few weeks ago, and it acted as such a wonderful diuretic that for the first time since I can remember I'm not called up.

"I also suffered terribly with indigestion, gas in my stomach, felt bloated all the time and would have awful headaches and dizzy spells, also, my appetite was in and out, sometimes I was so hungry I couldn't get enough to eat, at others I couldn't touch a thing. I was so tired and restless that life just felt a burden.

"I'm sure all my troubles were due to constipation and excess acid in my stomach, because Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets gave marvelous relief from constipation giving thorough elimination, then, all the ailments that had bothered me for years just passed away and today I'm feeling grand.

MRS. CORA I. DAVIDSON

"I feel sure that everyone suffering like I did will find Vendol a very satisfactory medicine."

Vendol is made from extracts of 12 roots and herbs combined with alkalines making a double-acting remedy which acts promptly to relieve many troubles due to need of a diuretic to the kidneys or constipation. Hundreds all over this vicinity owe their present health and comfort to this excellent medicine.

Give this grand medicine made of nature's Roots, Herbs, and mild Alkalines a chance to help you, too. Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and 4th Sts., and let the Vendol Man explain all about it. Druggists everywhere sell and recommend Vendol.

MUSIC STUDY CLUB HAS ANNUAL PROGRAM

Elizabeth Pastor, Child Pianist, Presents Own Composition; Ashland Musicians Give Vocal, Instrumental Numbers.

PROBABLY the most outstanding moment of the guest tea and musicale ot the Mansfield Music Study club in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel yesterday afternoon was the presentation of Elizabeth Pastor, child pianist from Ashland, in one of her own compositions. Elizabeth accompanied Jane Albright, Ashland violinist, in the presentation of her composition "Hymn to the Night."

Doubtlessly the most unusual composition to be presented by the three members of the Ashland Musical club who gave the program yesterday was "Mary Had a Little Lamb" by Ballantine presented as a piano selection by Berenice Bicksler. The simple melody is offered in 10 variations caricaturing 10 famous composers.

The composers are Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Wagner, Tschaikovsky, Greig, MacDowell, Debussy and Liszt.

Mrs. Albright, the pianist, opened the program with the allegro movement from "Sonata No. 5" by Beethoven. Dorothy Garrigus, soprano, presented a group of four numbers for her first offering. They were "Minnelied" by Brahms, "Eifer sucht and Stalz" by Schubert, "La Cloche" by Saint-Saens and "Mandoline" by Debussy.

Three Debussy numbers, "Reflets dans L'eau," "Soiree dans Granada" and "La Cathedrale engloutie" were then given by Miss Bicksler. In the group including Elizabeth Pastor's composition Mrs. Albright played "Poeme Erotique" by Scott, "New Zealand Lullaby" by Carr and "Guitarrero" by Drdla.

Mrs. Garrigus' final selections included "Dream Dawn" by Weaver, "To My Mother" by MacGinsey, "Love Went A-Riding" by Bridge, "Valse" by Arensky-Koshetz, "Shepherd's Cradle Song" by Somervell and "Yesterday and Today" by Spross. During the last three vocal numbers Mrs. Albright played the violin obbligato.

Marie Marks Porterfield, Mansfield pianist, assisted Mrs. Garrigus as accompanist. Hosts for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Frank and Mr. and Mrs Paul Watts.

Mrs. K. E. Buhr, president of the club, introduced the artists, and announced that tonight the club would conduct the annual business meeting and election of officers at the Women's Club. Members of the study group will meet Jan. 15 with Mrs. Joy Herbert, Marion avenue.

A long table at the west end of the room decorated with two low bowls of pink roses was used for serving tea to the 75 members and guests attending the function.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Boone, 84 Sheridan avenue, left this morning for Lewistown, Pa.. They were called to that city by the illness of Mrs. Boone's mother, Mrs. Bruce Pearson.

Informally Speaking...

Lucy Dear: Monday, January 9.

NOW that the holidays are past some Mansfielders are planning trips, others are moving away, and parties are still very much in evidence . . . all of which proves that the local residents have a pretty busy time of it.

* * * * *

Mary (Phelps) Campbell is finding this week much too short for all she has to do. She's leaving Sunday to join her husband, Charlie, in Madison, Wis., where they will make their home . . . so between packing and parties, there's precious little time for anything else. Pat Kramer entertained for Mary with a bridge party Friday evening . . . and the lucky honoree not only received a gift from Pat . . . but won the high score bridge prize besides! Tonight Sue (Hartenfels) Herrick is giving a supper party in Mary's honor . . . with bridge afterwards . . . there'll be another gift for Mary . . . and perhaps another bridge prize, too!

* * * * *

The Chi Sigmas had a most attractive centerpiece at their guest breakfast in the Chinese room of the Leland hotel yesterday morning. There were yellow rosebuds, tiny California acacia, and green ferns arranged in a long, low bowl . . . then after the breakfast, each of the girls was given a little spray from the centerpiece for her shoulder—a pleasant remembrance of the party indeed.

* * * * *

I COULDN'T help but notice the attractive hats the girls were wearing at the breakfast . . . those little flat pillbox hats seemed to be most in evidence . . . Tookie Nail's was in black with a rhinestone clip and lacy, black veil . . . Wilma Snider had one on, too—her's was navy blue with a band of pink across the front. Rita Newcomer was wearing a smart black sailor . . . and Eleanor Petree had a pleasant variation of a Russian toque which was chartreuse in color.

* * * * *

Some people seem to have all the luck . . . while the rest of us are impatiently awaiting the first warm spring day so that we can get out the clubs and have a game of golf . . . Dorothy Reynolds is enjoying all the comforts of mid-summer. She has gone to Altadena, Cal., with her father, Ed Baxter, and her daughter, Peggy. They have leased a house there until the first of April . . . and that house is right on the edge of a golf course! Mrs. Frank Black accompanied them on the trip and she plans to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Berry Baxter during her visit.

* * * * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Crum are leaving tomorrow for a trip which won't bring them back to the city until April 1 either. They are driving to Bator Rouge, La., where they will entrain for San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco to visit with friends. Then they will return to Baton Rouge and motor to New Orleans in time to attend the Mardi Gras next month. The Crums intend to tour the state of Florida before returning home.

* * * * *

THERE certainly have been a lot of diamond rings given away during the past few weeks, and it seems as though every day I learn of another. And the girls who work in insurance offices must be pretty good security . . . for this time it's Virginia Glessner, who works at the Lincoln Insurance agency. She received a ring from Doug Thomas.

* * * * *

You no doubt remember when I told you that Doug Hill and Dick Schettler came home for the holidays from Culver Military academy . . . well, they've been more fortunate than most school students, because they're just returning to the Indiana academy today to resume their studies.

* * * * *

You'd probably given me up as a detective, Lucy, but I've finally discovered what Charles Stamm is doing now. He and his wife, Jane, are living in East Orange, N. J., where Chuck is associated with a large steel corporation . . . and he instructs chemistry there, too The Stamms have a fine young son, Charles III, who is not yet six months old.

* * * * *

So now that I've proven myself as a sleuth, just let me know if there are any other Mansfielders you've lost track of . . . and I'll try to locate them for you.

Lovingly,

MARIANNE.

Parent-Teacher Groups Begin Year With Talks, Programs

WITH the scattering of pupils and teachers in the Mansfield school district all about the city it is a real surprise to find all the Parent-Teacher groups and Mothers' clubs continuing their activities as though there had never been an interruption either for vacation or wholesale movings.

Tonight the executive board of the P. T. A. council will assemble at 7:30 p. m. in the basement of the Lincoln Continental Insurance company to make plans for next year.

Several of the groups will meet tomorrow, including the Woodland P. T. A. which will assemble at 7:30 p. m. to hear Rufus Tracy speak on his experiences in South America. Mrs. V. E. Broach is in charge of the program to be presented at the Bushnell P. T. A. meeting at 7.30 p. m. Tuesday. There will be a one-act play enacted by a group of parents, and group singing will follow.

Prof. M. A. Stuckey of the theological department of Ashland college will talk on "Guidance" before a group of Carpenter parents at 7:30 p. m. Robert Early accompanied by Mrs. David Ireland will present vocal selections.

The only other school scheduled to have a P. T. A. meeting is the Newman group. William Dworski, manager of the Onio theater, will speak in the school auditorium on the educational value of the motion picture.

No meetings have been announced for Wednesday, but the West Fifth Mothers' club will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday for a program of choral music to be presented by a group of members directed by Mrs. H. D. Bishop, Mrs. Katharine Bancroft, teacher, will talk on the value of the school Safety club. Glenn Robinson, principal, will explain the use of new equipment in the manual arts department.

FAMILY PARTY.

A celebration and dinner honored Mrs. Rebecca Ferrell, 296 Marion avenue, yesterday when she observed her 82nd birthday. The affair was a family party at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ferrell. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Zeigler, son-in-lay and daughter from Shenandoah; Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Ferrell, son and daughter-in-law from Cleveland, and Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Ferrell, grandson and wife from West Palm Beach, Fla., were present. Two other grandsons, Keith and Russell Ferrell, in addition to eight guests were present.

CLUB MEETS.

Five hundred was played Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Berger, 288 Harker street, entertained members of La Petite club at their home. Mrs. Clyde Benninghoff won the women's high score prize, and Ralph Worley won the men's high score prize and the travel prize. Luncheon was served at the close of the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Benninghoff will entertain Feb. 4 at their home on South Main street.

FISH FOR HAIR

There may be just as good fish in Miami waters as ever were caught but one suspects that a number of the more ornamental ones have turned model for gewgaws for the hair. The up hair do permits lots of evening chi-chi and among new nad amusing ornaments are little schools of fish in brilliants that swim engagingly across the side of the coiffure.
